Clemson Graduates

A record five members of the Clemson football team already have received their undergraduate degrees. The list includes starters Wayne Simmons (OLB, financial management), Al Richard (DT, management) and John Harris (C, PRM), and reserve Alex Dial (OG, Management). Dial is out for the season due to knee problems.

Four Tigers graduated on August 9, just two days before the commencement of fall football practice. Roger Hutchins, the starting snapper on this year's team, earned his degree in textile management this past May.

Simmons is ranked 11th in Clemson history in quarterback sacks (11) and tackles for loss (25) entering the 1992 season. Richard, who has seven career starts entering 1992, is the only returning defensive lineman with three varsity letters. Harris is in his first year as a starter, but has played 36 snaps over the last two Clemson bowl games.

Clemson Seniors

Clemson has 22 seniors on the 1992 team. The group enters the 1992 season with a 29-6-1 record in its first three years, the sixth best record in college football. An 11-win season would tie this class with the Clemson senior group of 1990 as the winningest class in ACC football history. The 1990 Clemson seniors led by John Johnson, Vance Hammond and Stacy Long had a 40-8 career record, the only ACC class in history with 40 wins over a four-year period.

Ashley Sheppard, Wayne Simmons, Jamison Temples, and James Trapp.

Here is a list of the best records among current senior classes across the country:

Ball State Scouting Report

This will be the first meeting between Clemson and Ball State on the gridiron. In fact Ball State is just the second team from the midwest to face Clemson in Death Valley. Notre Dame, also from Indiana, is the only other school from a midwestern state to travel South to play at Clemson. This will also be Clemson's first meeting anywhere against a team from the Mid-American Conference.

The Cardinals have ranked in the top 20 in the nation in total defense five of the last seven years, and that could again be their strength this year. Defensively, Ball State returns eight starters plus one part-time starter that helped that defense rank 11th in the nation last year.

Each of the top four tacklers return for Ball State, including Mark Parrish, an inside linebacker who ranked sixth in the nation in tackles last year with 167. He also had 16 tackles behind the line of scrimmage and was named the team's MVP last year. The native of Lawrenceburg, IN had a career high of 22 tackles against Miami (OH) last season and had six tackles for loss in a game against Central Michigan.

Famous Ball State Alumni

David Letterman—Host of "Late Night with David Letterman" on NBC television.

Joyce DeWitt—Accomplished entertainer who starred in syndicated television series "Three's Company"

Jim Davis—Famed cartoonist who created "Garfield the Cat".

Tim Brown—Former pro football player with the Philadelphia Eagles in the 1960s who played Spearchucker Jones in the original M*A*S*H movie.

Merv Rettenmund—Longtime major leaguer with the Baltimore Orioles who is the hitting instructor for the San Diego Padres and National League Triple Crown candidate Gary Sheffield. Rettenmund still holds Ball State football record for yards per carry (7.6) for a career.

Arthur Johnson—Brigadier General in the United States Air Force.

Kent Nelson—Chief Executive Officer of United Parcel Service.

Brian Tennyson—Touring PGA player.

Henry Hall, a second-team All-MAC choice last year at defensive end, had 18 tackles for loss last year to lead the team and has started 33 straight games. He was also over 100 tackles last year (109) and has 229 for his career. Dan Stonefield, another starting linebacker, had 20 stops against Miami (OH) in 1990 and finished 1991 with 96 stops. He is a former high school teammate of Parrish. The consistent Blaine Bishop leads the secondary. He has had 85 and 84 tackles, respectively, the last two seasons.

Offensively, Ball State returns a 1,000-yard rusher, a quarterback who completed 63 percent of his passes, and a receiver who averaged more catches per game than Clemson's Terry Smith. Not bad for a team that talks about its defense as the hallmark of a program that is 28-15-2 over the last four years, the best record of any Mid-American team.

Corey Croom set a school record last year with 291 carries for 1053 yards. The All-MAC back was 27th in the nation in rushing last year and has 1568 career yards. Mike Neu, who has started 17 games the last two years, completed 141-225 passes last year for 1,491 yards. That 63 percent completion mark is one of the best in school history. He threw for 332 yards, a career high, against MAC champion Bowling Green last year as he hit on 25-37 passes.

Two of Notre Dame's top cornerbacks in its history, Luther Bradley (who played against Clemson in 1977) and Dave Duerson (Super Bowl champion with Bears and Giants) grew up in Muncie, IN, the home of Ball State. A decade later, Ball State has returned the favor, as top Cardinals wide receiver, Mike LeSure, is from South Bend, IN, the home of the Fighting Irish. LeSure had 49 receptions last year for 629 yards and has 78 career catches, just eight fewer than Clemson star, Terry Smith.

Clemson Update

Clemson and Miami (FL) are the only programs in the nation that have had two losses or less for six straight seasons. If Clemson is to stay in that kind of company in 1992 the Tigers must get some outstanding play from newcomers to the lineup. Most football prognosticators feel the Tigers can continue this nearly unparalleled level of consistency, as Clemson is nearly a consensus top 20 preseason selection.

Leading the way on offense will be wide receiver Terry Smith, running back Rodney Blunt and offensive linemen Stacy Seegars and Les Hall. Smith led the ACC in reception yardage last year and his 52 pass receptions ranked as the most by a Tiger since 1981. Blunt, a junior this season, picked up 747 yards in 1991, including an average of 91.2 yards a game over the last six regular season contests.

Seegars and Hall lead one of the largest offensive lines in the nation, perhaps the largest in football. Clemson's Orange People Movers average 301 pounds from tackle to tackle, the largest group of starters in Clemson history. Seegars, a preseason All-American, is 320 pounds, the largest guard in Clemson history. He played more snaps than any other Tiger last year (808). Hall, played nearly 500 snaps as a part-time starter at tackle. At 6-7, he is the tallest tackle in Clemson history.

Larry Ryans is an all-around performer who might be the most under-rated wide receiver in the ACC, while quarterback Richard Moncrief is ready to take over the leadership of the offense after serving a two-year apprenticeship to DeChane Cameron, the winningest quarterback in Clemson history. Moncrief runs the option with dexterity and could be the top rushing quarterback in the ACC this year.

The fullback position is led by Howard Hall, Paul Caputo and Marrio Grier. Rudy Harris, the second leading rusher in 1990 and the third leading ground gainer in 1991, will sit out the first three games due to an NCAA suspension. Hall and Caputo both have starting experience, while Grier is one of the most highly regarded freshmen on the Clemson roster.

Clemson has ranked in the top 12 in the nation in total defense five straight seasons, including the top five in the country three straight years. At least at the beginning of the season, Clemson will not be as deep defensively as it has been in recent years. Still, there are many top first-line players ready to show the newcomers the ropes.

On the defensive front, Brentson Buckner has moved to middle guard and is ready to continue Clemson's outstanding tradition of players at that position. In the first scrimmage of the year the native of Columbus, GA had four tackles for loss. Wayne Simmons and Ashley Sheppard might rank as the best outside linebacker combination in the country. Simmons is already in the top dozen in Clemson history in sacks and tackles for loss, while Sheppard already has the Clemson mark for special teams tackles in a career.

Kenzil Jackson leads the inside linebackers. He ranked fourth on the team in stops last year and is first among returning players. Robert O'Neal is the leader of the secondary and perhaps the entire defense. O'Neal has been first or second-team All-ACC in each of his first three years and could become the first Tiger to make an All-ACC team four straight seasons. He is already ranked in the top 10 in Clemson history in interceptions and passes broken up.

Tigers in Openers

Clemson has the third best record in college football over the last five years and getting off to a good start is part of the reason. In the last five season openers Clemson has registered four shutouts and outscored the opposition 206-7. Clemson has not been scored on in the season opener since 1988, as the Tigers have registered wins of 34-0 over Appalachian State, 59-0 over Long Beach State and 30-0 over Furman in each of the last three years. Virginia Tech, a 40-7 loser to Clemson in the opener of 1988, is the last team to score against Clemson in the first game. The Tigers downed Western Carolina, 43-0 in 1987.

Overall, Clemson is 71-17-8 in the season opener for its previous 96 seasons of football, a 78 percent mark. Clemson last lost an opener in 1986 when Virginia Tech downed the Tigers 20-14 in Death Valley. Clemson has won 12 of its last 14 openers and eight of its last nine.

Fifteen Straight at Home

Coach Ken Hatfield has not suffered a defeat in Death Valley in his two years as Clemson head coach. He has a 12-0-1 record in his two seasons with the only blemish being a 20-20 tie with Virginia last year.

Clemson has actually gone 15 straight without a loss dating back to a 30-14 Georgia Tech victory in 1989. This is the second longest Clemson unbeaten streak in Death Valley's 50-year history and it ties for the second longest home unbeaten streak in Clemson history overall.

The Tiger seniors of the 1984 football season (Mike Eppley, William Perry, Dale Hatcher) lost just one home game in their four years, 22-21 against South Carolina in 1984. Clemson had a 23-0-2 record between the final home game of 1980 and that loss to South Carolina in 1984. Only ties with Boston College and Doug Flutie, and Georgia kept the Tigers from a 25-game home winning streak.

This is the 51st year of football in Death Valley. In the first 50 years the Tigers have run up a record of 170-62-7, a winning percentage of 74.1 percent. Clemson has outscored the opposition 5935-3079 over the years in games played at Death Valley. In other words, the average score of a Clemson game at Memorial Stadium over the years is Clemson 25, opposition 13.

Overall, the Tigers are 245-87-15, a 72.8 winning percentage in home games in its 96-year history. This includes play in Death Valley, Bowman Field (in front of Tillman Hall) and Riggs Field (current Soccer Stadium). Clemson played at Bowman Field between 1898 (no home games in 1896 and 1897) and 1914 and at Riggs Field between 1915-41.

Here is a list of Clemson's longest home unbeaten streaks in history, regardless of home site.

Larry Ryans — ACC Champion

by Annabelle Vaughan

Late this summer, while the whole world watched (or at least those who weren't watching the Braves sweep the Reds), the United States Olympic team brought home more medals than any U.S. team ever had during a non-boycotted Olympic year. A large portion of that medal total was won through the efforts of the U.S. Track and Field unit.

Four-time Clemson All-America hurdler Larry Ryans watched with interest as many of the athletes he has competed against ran to victory. Ryans himself had qualified for the Olympic Trials, but a knee injury that worsened during the latter part of the outdoor track season forced him to undergo arthroscopic surgery just a week or two before the trials began, and he was unable to compete in New Orleans. There was no guarantee that Ryans would have made the squad, but because he couldn't compete...well, who knows?

So, did the Greenwood, SC, native sit and watch the Olympic Games with a feeling of disappointment? Did all of the "what-ifs" keep running through his mind? Ryans laughs. "If I had been in Barcelona, I probably would have been thinking about football. I would be over there thinking, 'I'm not lifting any weights, I'm not catching any passes, I'm not doing anything to get ready for football.'"

You see, as soon as the NCAA Outdoor Track and Field Championships were over on June 6, Larry Ryans, hurdler extraordinaire, became Larry Ryans, wide receiver on a mission. And as the Tigers take the field today to open the 1992 campaign, Ryans may be the most determined player on the field. "My goals are football," he says. "I love track, but football is my sport. It would have bothered me to be running track in August because I wouldn't have been preparing for what I wanted to do. The Olympics come around every four years, but I only get this senior football season one time in my life. I want to be ready for it."

In order to get ready for this once-in-a-lifetime opportunity, Ryans spent the summer rehabilitating his knee, running, catching, lifting, and most importantly, concentrating. "As soon as the track season ended in June, my total concentration went to football. I want to stay focussed on what I'm doing and be ready when the time comes for me to do something. I'm coming to play every game. Whenever something happens, I'm going to be in the mix. I want to have something to do with every good thing that happens. I want to prove that I can be a vital part of this offense and this entire team."

In track, Ryans has been a vital part of five ACC Championship teams. Clemson's first All-America hurdler, Ryans has won five ACC Championships, two in the 110-meter high hurdles, one in the 55 meter high hurdles, and twice with the 4x100 meter relay squad. He was a vital part of the Tigers' second-place finish at the 1992 NCAA Indoor Track and Field Championships, as he finished fifth in the 55mHH. He has run four of the top five times in Clemson history in the 110 meter event, including the Clemson record of 13.61, and he also holds the Clemson and ACC indoor record in the 55 meter hurdles at 7.12, a mark that ranks 31st on the all-time world list and was the second fastest time run in the nation in 1992. He was a member of the 4x100 meter relay squad that finished second in the nation at the 1991 NCAA outdoor meet. Pretty impressive statistics for someone's "secondary" sport.

With all of the success that Ryans has enjoyed on the track, there are many self-proclaimed experts who think that Ryans should focus all of his attentions on his track career. Clemson head track coach Bob Pollock disagrees. "Larry has been a vital part of our track team for the last three years," says the 1992 NCAA indoor national Coach-of-the-Year. "I don't think football has done anything but help him when it comes to track. It helps keep him in shape and it is something that he loves to do. When it comes to football, Larry is single-minded in his pursuit of that sport. When it comes to track, he is single-minded there. I don't think the track coaching staff or the football coaching staff have any complaints there."

And even though he has missed most of the last three spring practices because of track, the Clemson football staff agrees with Pollock. "Track has given Larry a dimension that we can't teach him: speed," says wide receiver coach Richard Wilson. "We can teach him everything he needs to know about being a wide receiver, but we can't teach him that. He has missed most of spring practice each year, but with his work ethic, he can catch up on learning the football. It's his speed that makes him better than the average receiver."

"I think some people think I would be better at track if I didn't play football and some people think I would be better at football if I didn't run track," Ryans says. "I think I'm doing fine and I'm doing what I want to do. I'm doing fine in track and I'm doing fine in football. Track is more of an individual sport, so I have had the opportunity to let loose and do what I know I can do. It's more fun because you get to make more of your own decisions as to how you are going to train and how you are going to compete. As far as football goes, I haven't really been put in the situation where I can just let loose. I'm hoping this year I can be put in that situation."

Football gets Ryans's 100 percent focus from June to January and track has been his focus the other six months. Seldom does he have an off-season.

Perhaps Ryans hasn't "let loose" the way he wants to, but he played an important role on the Tigers' 1991 ACC Championship team (giving Ryans six ACC team championship rings for those who are counting). He was the second-leading receiver and started every game for the offense that ranked second in Clemson history in total offense per game and led the ACC. He was also the Tigers' leading kickoff returner and was fourth on the team in all-purpose running. In the Tigers' loss to Georgia last season, he indeed "let loose", as he compiled 191 yards in all-purpose rushing when he had five receptions for 95 yards and a touchdown and returned three kickoffs for 96 yards.

But Ryans wants more. He wants to be more than just a "fine" football player. "Last year was one of frustration for me," he remembers. "I always expected to play a big part in the games, and then after the games, I never felt like I had done enough to help the team."

One reason Ryans feels he hasn't been the best he could be on the football field is because the wide receiver position is still relatively new to him. He was slated to be a receiver during his senior season at Greenwood High School, but a broken collarbone kept him out of action for a major portion of the year. He began his Clemson career at defensive back, where he played sparingly as a true freshman, recording 10 tackles and breaking up two passes in 76 plays. He began the 1990 campaign playing tailback, but moved over to wideout as the season got underway.

"I lost so much time changing positions," says Ryans. "I can't complain because I just want to help the team and I know the coaches were looking for the spot where I could play the most. But I have had to not only learn the physical aspects of all three positions, but the mental aspects too. I've only played receiver two good years."

"I'm just getting comfortable being a receiver. I pretty much knew what to do when I moved over, it was just that when other receivers had been in a certain situation 10,000 times, it was my first time in that situation. I knew what to do, there were just so many situations I hadn't been in yet. This year, I think I've been in most of the situations that can come up, so I hope I will finally get my chance."

Ryans scoffs at the idea that his disappointment in football may be exacerbated by the success he has enjoyed in track. "I don't think I'm a perfectionist. I know I can't be perfect and I don't want to be perfect. I don't think I did everything I could have done in track either. I wasn't the best I could be in either sport, and I shouldn't be satisfied until I am the best."

And what else does Ryans want to accomplish during his track career? "Well I haven't won any national championships yet," he says with a smile. "My knee really bothered me this year, and I probably shouldn't have even run outdoors. It wasn't too bad when I was running the hurdles, but when I ran on the relay and had to run those tight curves, it gave me a fit. Next year, hopefully, I will be at full strength for track too."

Ryans has been an ACC Champion in football and track during his Clemson career. He is the first All-America hurdler in Tiger history.

"In football, I think that in every situation that comes up, I can say I've been there before. Next year in track it will be the same. I used to look at the guys I was running against and say, 'Wow, that's so-and-so and that's so-and-so,' and I would just be amazed that I was actually competing against them. But now I look at them and say, 'Hey, it's not going to be too much longer before I beat them.'"

Wide receiver is the position that Ryans has always wanted to play, mainly because his uncle, John Gilliam, was a wide receiver for the Minnesota Vikings as Ryans was growing up. "I always wanted to be like him," Ryans remembers. "He comes to the big games and gives me advice now that I'm playing wide receiver. He tells me things I'm doing wrong. My parents also come to all the football games, and my dad comes to almost every track meet I ever run in, so my family supports me in both sports year round."

One way in which Ryans has been able to take what he learns in track and apply it to the gridiron is when it comes to returning kicks. He hopes that this year he will be more of a factor when it comes to returning kicks for the Tigers. But he doesn't think that his track speed is his biggest asset when it comes to that portion of his game. "I don't like to go down. I don't like to get my uniform dirty, so I definitely don't like to get tackled. You just have to be a little crazy to run a kickoff return." And there is another person Ryans thinks is just crazy enough to return kicks with him - his roommate, track teammate, and football teammate, James Trapp, the only 10-time track All-American in Clemson history.

"Trapp can't catch a pass," Ryans laughs, "but he could catch a kickoff. And once he caught it, I don't know if anyone could catch him. It would be great to return kicks with Trapp because I would go out on a limb for him and I know he would go out on a limb for me. We're used to running with each other." (On the 4x100 meter relay, Ryans usually hands off to Trapp.)

Ryans' friendship with Trapp is another reason why he has no regrets about competing in both sports. "During our freshman year, we got to be good friends in the track season and we have been roommates ever since. We are a lot alike on the inside, even though on the outside, we might be totally different. When we get in situations, he might be on one extreme and I might be on the other extreme, and when we get together, it's just right. We compete against each other because he's a DB and we compete with each other on the relay in track. He always says I can't beat him on the football field, and I say I can, so there is always a competition between us. But we help each other out in both football and track and just in life."

When Clemson's track season ended in June, Trapp headed to New Orleans and then to Barcelona. But what did Ryans do with the two months that he has off from active competition? "I got bored!" he says. "Everybody always asks me how I can go full speed all year round, and it is hard. Sometimes I get so tired I feel like I can't do anything or think about anything. I just have to crawl in bed and sleep for a whole day. But I have to be competing. I don't know what I would do in the offseason if I wasn't running track."

So even though the 1991 season was somewhat frustrating for Ryans on the football field and he didn't accomplish all of his goals in track, does he have any regrets? "It's turned out great," he says enthusiastically. "In football, I'm playing where I want to play and I'm at the point where I think I can really make some positive things happen. I'm doing well in track, even though I haven't accomplished my ultimate goals. I have been an All-American and an ACC Champion and I hold a couple of records. I'm doing well in school too, which is another top priority. Everything turned out right. Everything is how I want it to be...or at least its going in the right direction. How it turns out is yet to be seen."

Dr. Max Lennon

Clemson University President Max Lennon's ambition is to be president of the nation's top technologically-oriented land grant university. And he doesn't plan to leave campus to achieve that goal. Because that's the vision Lennon has for Clemson: not to be "one of the best," but to be better at what it does than any other school.

To achieve the vision, Lennon has brought the business world's concepts of total quality management and strategic planning to the academic arena. He hopes these concepts will help reduce bureaucracy, increase involvement of students, faculty and staff in the management of the university, increase diversity, and create an atmosphere of a community of scholars.

"The vision statement that has emerged from the strategic planning process — to become the nation's leading technologically-oriented land-grant university — sets a challenging course for this institution's development: to become the best in our league," he has said.

It is this commitment to excellence that has enabled Lennon to lead Clemson to new heights during his six years as president. The Lennon presidency has seen the completion of the most successful campaign in the university's, and the state's, history; unprecedented growth in research, topping $90 million in annual expenditures last year; and an ongoing program of campus revitalization that balances the university's desire for technological excellence, cultural awareness, and historic preservation.

Lennon came to Clemson from Ohio State University, where he had been president for agriculture administration and executive dean for agriculture, home economics and natural resources. He also served on the Ohio State Faculty Senate and co-chaired the Governor's Commission on Agriculture.

Previously, he had served as dean of the College of Agriculture at Ohio State, director of the Agricultural Experiment Station at the University of Missouri, and as associate dean and director of research in the College of Agricultural Sciences at Texas Tech University.

Lennon is a native of Columbus County, NC, and earned his bachelor's degree and doctorate from N.C. State University, where he began his teaching career.

The Clemson president has been active in a number of civic and professional groups, ranging from the local Rotary Club and Chamber of Commerce to the Board of Directors of EARTH in Costa Rica, which through education and investments aims to improve Third World agriculture.

Lennon has served as chairman of the Foreign Assistance Act Committee of the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges (NASULGC), Chairman of the South Carolina Public Colleges and Universities Council of Presidents, and member of the boards of the S.C. Research Authority, Greenville Urban League, Farm Foundation, Duke Power, First Union, and Delta Woodside.

In the fall of 1987, Lennon was named to the board of trustees of the Farm Foundation, a national organization devoted to improving research and education to benefit rural areas. In 1988, he was appointed to the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Policy Advisory Committee for Science and Education Research Grants Program by Secretary of Agriculture Richard E. Lyng, and was a keynote speaker at the AgBiotech 88 international conference in Washington.

Lennon also was appointed to chair a committee of top administrators and federal officials from 11 universities across the nation to work with congress on legislation relating to foreign assistance and international development. The committee is a project of the National Association of State Universities and land-grant colleges.

Lennon is married to Ruth Carter Lennon. This past year, they joined an elite group of people who can call themselves "Clemson Parents" when both children, Daniel Ray and Robin, received degrees from the university.

Dr. Max Lennon hopes to make Clemson the top technologically-oriented land-grant university in the nation.

Head Coach Ken Hatfield

When Clemson recorded its 1991 victory over Duke halfway around the world in Tokyo, Japan, Tiger head coach Ken Hatfield celebrated not just his first-ever Atlantic Coast Conference regular season title, but also his 100th victory as a head coach. Even though Hatfield has been in coaching only since 1979, he has placed his name among the top mentors in the nation.

Heading into the 1992 season, Hatfield is tied for third with Florida State's Bobby Bowden in wins among active coaches who have coached at a Division I school each of the last 10 years. He posts a 92-28-2 record in that time frame. And Hatfield's .762 winning percentage over the last 10 years ranks fourth among active coaches who have coached at Division I schools in each year of the last decade.

When Hatfield took over the Clemson program prior to the 1990 season, he was faced with the challenge of continuing the tradition of excellence set in the eighties (only Nebraska and Miami had fewer losses in that time frame than Clemson). Hatfield has more than met the challenge, posting a 19-4-1 mark for the Tigers in his first two seasons.

The victory over Illinois in the 1991 Hall of Fame Bowl made Hatfield the first Clemson coach to win 10 games in his first year and his .833 winning percentage is the best for a first-year Clemson coach since 1900 when John Heisman was 6-0. The 1990 season included six wins over teams with winning records. Only national champion Georgia Tech had more.

Hatfield was just the eighth coach in the last 13 years to take a team to a Top 10 AP final ranking in his first year with the program. He was the first ACC coach in history to take a team to a final AP top 10 ranking in his first year at a school.

But Hatfield's impressive debut at Clemson was no big surprise to those who have followed his career. He has enjoyed success throughout his involvement with the sport of football, as a player and coach.

As a player, he helped Arkansas face every challenge in 1964, when the Razorbacks had an 11-0 season and won the national title. As an assistant coach at Tennessee and Florida, he molded countless players into top-notch athletes who competed for Southeastern Conference titles, played in seven bowl games in a 10-year period, and ranked in the final top-20 five times. As a head coach, he took a dormant Air Force program to a number-13 national ranking and a pair of bowl wins. He continued to meet the challenges at Arkansas, his alma mater, guiding the Razorbacks to back-to-back Southwest Conference titles, something that had not been done at Arkansas since Hatfield was a player.

Hatfield has had five 10-win seasons in his career and has accomplished that task at three different schools. He is the only active coach and one of just two in the history of the game to have taken three different schools to a 10-win season.

Hatfield has taken his teams to 10 consecutive post-season bowls, including January 1 appearances five of the last six years. He is one of just four active coaches to take a team to a bowl each of the last 10 years. He is in noteworthy company as the other members of that exclusive club are Tom Osborne (Nebraska), LaVell Edwards (BYU), and Bobby Bowden (Florida State).

Hatfield has an overall record of 100-53-3 (.651), but he has won 78 percent of his games over the last eight seasons (84-23-2). At Arkansas, he posted a record of 55-17-1 over six seasons, a .760 winning percentage. That percentage is second best in Southwest Conference history as only Darrell Royal (Texas 1957-76) had a better percentage.

The native of Helena, Arkansas, played in two bowl games with the Razorbacks, coached in seven post-season games as an assistant and the 1992 Citrus Bowl marked the 10th in which he has been the head coach. Seven times he has coached a team to a top 20 final ranking in the AP poll, and he played on two other top 15 teams. The 9-2-1 ledger and #18 AP ranking in 1991 gave him seven top 20 finishes in the last 10 years.

Hatfield-coached clubs have excelled offensively and defensively, but they have been particularly successful in rushing offense and defense. Each of his last 10 teams has finished in the top 20 nationally in rushing offense, including seven top 10 finishes. This includes last year's team, which averaged 252 yards a game.

Two of his last four Arkansas teams finished in the top three in the country in turnover margin, including his 1988 team that was first in the nation (Clemson was second that same year). Defensively, his clubs have finished in the top 15 in the nation in rushing defense six of the last seven years. The Tigers were ranked first in the nation in total defense, second in rushing defense, and second in scoring defense at the end of the 1990 regular season. Clemson ranked first in the nation in rushing defense and fourth in total defense in the 1991 season.

Hatfield has coached in four major conferences and with independent schools, giving him a diverse background in the finer points of the game. It is one reason he was named the third best teaching coach in college football by Inside Sports Magazine in 1990.

Hatfield began his coaching career immediately after graduation. In the fall of 1965, he served as an assistant coach at Helena-West Helena High School in Arkansas. In 1966, he moved to West Point, where he served as freshman coach for two seasons.

After the two-year stint at Army, he served as an assistant coach at Tennessee for three years (1968-70). The Volunteers went to post-season bowls all three seasons (including two major bowls), won a conference title and ranked in the final top 20 of the AP poll all three seasons, including a number-four ranking in 1970.

In 1971, Hatfield began a seven-year stint at the University of Florida, spending four seasons as a defensive backfield coach and three as an offensive backfield mentor. Florida played in four bowl games during his career in Gainesville and two more Gator teams finished in the AP top 20, including the 1974 team that played Nebraska in the Sugar Bowl.

Clemson won the ACC in 1991, Ken Hatfield's second year at Clemson. He has guided Clemson to a pair of Top 20 seasons in his first two years.

Hatfield became offensive coordinator at the Air Force Academy under former New York Giants Head Coach Bill Parcells in 1978. A year later, Parcells was wooed to the Big Apple and Hatfield became the Falcons' head coach. The Air Force program had not had a winning season since 1973. But by his fourth season, Hatfield had an eight-game winner, led Air Force to its first-ever victory over Notre Dame, and had taken the Falcons to a post-season bowl for the first time since 1971.

In 1983, Hatfield was named national Coach-of-the-Year by the Football Coaches Association (Bobby Dodd Award) after leading Air Force to a 10-2 season that included wins over Notre Dame, Navy and a bowl victory over Mississippi. It was the Academy's first-ever win over Notre Dame in South Bend.

The next year, Hatfield succeeded Lou Holtz at Arkansas, where he would take his alma mater to 55 wins in six seasons, six bowl appearances and four final top-15 rankings. His 1985 club finished with a 10-2 mark and number-12 national ranking, the Razorbacks' first Top 20 finish since 1982. Four times the Razorbacks rallied from fourth quarter deficits to gain victory.

The 1986 campaign was another year of success with highlight victories over a nationally ranked Texas A&M club and the Razorbacks' first win in 20 years at Texas. Arkansas advanced to the Orange Bowl and finished 15th in the final AP poll.

Arkansas won the 1988 and 1989 Southwest Conference Championships and the Razorbacks never finished lower than second in his six years at Fayetteville. He was named Southwest Conference Coach-of-the-Year in 1988 as he took the Razorbacks to the league title and a 10-0 start. Miami (FL) defeated Arkansas 18-16 in the Orange Bowl to stop the streak. Seven players off the 1988 club (all recruited by Hatfield) were drafted by the NFL, an Arkansas single draft record.

After the 1989 team's 10-2 ledger and second straight SWC championship, Hatfield was named Southwest Conference Coach-of-the-Decade by the Houston Post. Included in the victories was a triumph over a top-15 Houston team and Heisman Trophy winner Andre Ware.

Hatfield has also had success off the field. A recent release by the CFA cited his 1989 Arkansas class for excellence in terms of graduation rate (over 80 percent), one of the top 10 figures in the nation.

Hatfield played for three years at Arkansas (1962-64) and he was a starter on the National Championship team of 1964. A defensive back by trade, he earned his fame as the nation's top punt returner in 1963 and 1964. He also finished as the runner-up as a sophomore and is still the only college football player to finish in the top two in the nation in punt returns three straight seasons.

His most memorable play took place against Texas in 1964 when he raced 81 yards with a punt return for a touchdown in Arkansas' thrilling 14-13 victory. It was the key victory in the Razorbacks' championship season. Altogether, Hatfield scored five TDs via punt returns in his career, including an Arkansas record 95-yard return against Tulsa in 1963.

An accounting major who earned his diploma in the spring of 1965, Hatfield was an Academic All-American in 1964 and was the recipient of the Swartz Award, presented annually to the top student-athlete at Arkansas. The 1964 All-SWC selection was inducted into the Arkansas Sports Hall of Fame in 1989.

YOUR UNUSED TICKETS COULD HELP ERIC TACKLE THE BOOKS.

Eric attends a Homework Center – a place that helps him when Mom and Dad can't. And when he works especially hard, he can win wonderful prizes – like tickets to a Clemson home game that he might otherwise never get to see.

Hundreds of Homework Centers across the nation focus on keeping struggling students from becoming dropouts. In actuality, they're doing a lot more than that. Many hardworking students are bringing their grades up from F's to A's, and in one South Carolina elementary school expulsions declined from 38 to 4 after the centers opened.

Duke Power is proud to help support such an important and effective program. We invite you to help too. Simply donate football or basketball season tickets you're unable to use or purchase extra tickets to contribute to the Homework Centers for use as prizes. Send them at least two weeks before game day to: John Geer, Duke Power Company, P.O. Box 1745, Clemson, SC 29633.

If you do, you'll be helping students like Eric tackle the books today so that tomorrow they can tackle the world.

Clemson Coaches

The 1991-92 Clemson all-around sports program finished another successful year, as 13 of the 18 programs ranked in the top 25 of their respective final sports. Included in that 13 were 10 programs that were ranked in the top 20, tying the Clemson record for top 20 teams in an academic year. The highest ranked teams were the men's indoor track team (second) and baseball squad (seventh). The men's all-around sports program finished the year ranked 25th nationally.

Clemson teams laid claim to three ACC Championships last year as the football team won its first championship since 1988. The women's indoor track team won the ACC Indoor Track Meet giving the team its first ever ACC indoor championship. The men's track team also won the ACC indoor title for the fourth straight year. Clemson had 64 All-ACC selections and 27 All-Americans, tying the all-time record for All-America selections in a single academic year.

Men's spring sports and women's sports had an outstanding year. All four of Clemson's men's spring sports teams finished in the top 20 of their respective sports, the first time since 1987-88 that all four spring teams ranked in the final top 20. Baseball finished seventh, golf and men's track finished 12th, while the men's tennis team finished 20th. Five of Clemson's seven women's teams finished in the top 25. The women's outdoor track team finished 17th, the women's basketball team was 19th, the women's swimming team was 20th, the women's indoor track team was 22nd, and the women's tennis team was 23rd.

Clemson also excelled in the classroom during the 1991-92 campaign. Clemson student-athletes had a record semester in the spring, when 109 competitors made a 3.0 or better. Former football player Bruce Bratton and women's swimmer Liz Dolan won two of the highest academic awards distributed by the ACC. The Bob James Award was given to Bratton, while Dolan was presented with the Marie James Award. These scholarship awards are given to the top student-athletes, regardless of sport in the ACC.

Clemson had one National Coach-of-the-Year and two coaches were named the best in the ACC. Bob Pollock received both National Coach-of-the-Year and ACC Coach-of-the-Year honors after leading the track team to its best finish ever at the NCAA indoor meet. Wayne Coffman, women's indoor track coach, was named the ACC and District III Coach-of-the-Year.

The Atlantic Coast Conference

*Three members of the ACC rank among the top seven schools in the history of college football in bowl game winning percentage (given a minimum of 15 bowl games). Georgia Tech is first with a 17-8 record, for 68 percent, while Clemson is sixth at 11-7, a 61.1 percent mark. Florida State, who will compete for the ACC crown for the first time in 1992, is seventh with an 11-7-2 record, good enough for 60 percent. *ACC football attracted a league record 2,519,127 fans to its games last season. Over a 55-game schedule of home contests, that is an average of 45,802 per game. The previous records of 2,068,558 total fans and an average of 43,095, were established in 1985.

*Six of the nine ACC schools have been listed in various top 35 rankings of pre-season polls for the 1992 season.

*The 1991 season marked the second straight year that the ACC placed five teams in postseason bowls. The ACC has had 14 bowl invitations over the last three seasons, a record for any three-year stretch in league history.

*Only four coaches in the nation have taken a team to a postseason bowl game each of the last 10 years. Two of them, Ken Hatfield of Clemson and Bobby Bowden of Florida State, coach in the ACC.

*The ACC is second only to the Pac 10 in terms of bowl game winning percentage over the years. The ACC members have a combined mark of 64-56-5 for a .532 figure, while the Pac 10 is 73-58-6 for a .555 mark.

*Last year, 27 different ACC players made honorable mention All-American or better. This includes five players from Clemson, Rob Bodine, Ed McDaniel, Jeb Flesch, Levon Kirkland and Nelson Welch.

*Nine ACC players were chosen by at least one first-team All-America squad. Four of the nine players were from Clemson. This was the most first-team All-America players from Clemson in the school's history.

*Clemson and Florida State both rank among the top three in the nation in winning percentage over the last five years. Since 1987, Florida State is second only to Miami, while Clemson is third.

*The ACC had the second best non-conference winning percentage in the nation last year with a 15-9-1 record, a 62 percent mark. In 1990 the ACC ranked first, winning 25 of 32 games.

*Six of the nine ACC teams had winning records in 1991, tying a league mark for a single season.

*The ACC could be termed a coach's league. Five of the nine league coaches have 100 career wins or more entering the 1992 season. Those five coaches are Bobby Bowden of Florida State (206), Bill Dooley of Wake Forest (154), George Welsh of Virginia (121), Dick Sheridan of N.C. State (112) and Ken Hatfield of Clemson (100).

*Bowden, Sheridan and Hatfield are all among the top 15 winningest active coaches on a percentage basis. The ACC and the SEC are the only two conferences with three coaches ranked among the top 15 winningest active coaches.

*The ACC was the only conference in the nation that featured five different teams that won at least eight games in 1991. Florida State, Clemson, N.C. State, Georgia Tech and Virginia all hit the eight-win mark. The ACC was also the only conference in which at least half of its teams won at least eight games. The Pac-10 and the SEC each had four teams with at least eight wins.

*In 1991, the ACC had five teams ranked in the top 35 in the nation in total defense, more teams in the top 35 than any other conference in the nation. Clemson led the way with a fourth-place finish and a figure of 263.2 yards per game. The league also had five members among the top 30 teams in the nation in scoring defense.

*The ACC also has a reputation for outstanding field goal kickers. In 1991, six of the top 44 field goal kickers in the country were from the ACC. Clemson's Nelson Welch led the way with an average of 1.55 per game, good enough for fourth in the nation. Only five kickers booted five field goals in a game last year across the country. Two of the five, Clemson's Nelson Welch, and Mike Green of Wake Forest, played in the ACC.

*The ACC was also the top conference in the nation for nationally ranked punt returners in 1991. Seven of the top 45 punt returners in the nation were from the ACC. Clemson's Darnell Stephens led the conference and finished eighth in the nation.

Traditions are something that don't happen overnight, they evolve over a number of years. One tradition at Clemson that is going strong and heading into its 58th year is IPTAY. The IPTAY Scholarship Foundation, is known throughout the country for its faithful and generous contributions by its supporters. A recent USA Today article calls IPTAY the best-known organization of its kind in the nation. The article noted that at a time when college athletic costs are rising IPTAY continues to lead the way in supporting athletic scholarships at Clemson. IPTAY plays a major role in insuring that all 18 of the varsity sports at Clemson are given the maximum amount of scholarships allowed by the NCAA.

Thanks in part to IPTAY's contributions the 1991-1992 academic year proved to be one of the most successful ever for Clemson athletics. Thirteen of the 18 athletic teams at Clemson finished the year ranked in the top 25 in their respective sports. Ten of those teams were ranked in the top 20, which ties for the most top 20 teams at Clemson in an academic year.

An even more impressive fact was that Clemson had 27 All-Americans in 1991-1992, tying the record that was set during that 1990-1991 academic year. Clemson also had 64 first-team All-ACC selections, the third most in Clemson history for an academic year.

Over the last five years, 16 of Clemson's 18 teams have been ranked in the top 25 in the country at one time or another. During this time the Clemson football, women's cross country, women's basketball and golf teams have been in the top 25 all five years, while the men's indoor track, baseball, women's track and women's swimming teams have had four top 20 seasons.

The success of the Clemson athletic program comes during a time when the integrity and accountability of the academic progress of student-athletes are receiving national attention. IPTAY has been a large part of that success by being committed to the student-athlete.

IPTAY is recognized as one of the oldest, largest and most successful athletic fundraising organizations in America. IPTAY was the first athletic fundraising organization in the country to top the two, three, four, and five-million dollar marks in annual donations. It has had a record-breaking total for 28 straight years.

In 1934, Dr. Rupert Fike founded IPTAY with a very simple purpose in mind: IPTAY provides funds for athletic scholarships. Since 1934 IPTAY has certainly met Fike's goal, providing scholarships for over 5,000 student-athletes, trainers, and managers.

IPTAY currently provides the funds for tutorial programs staffed by trained academic advisors, assisted by graduate and undergraduate students. This support is intended to insure that all student-athletes are given the opportunity to earn their degree while participating in athletics.

Allison Dalton is the leader of America's top athletic scholarship foundation.

IPTAY donors have also played an intricate role in the "Campaign for Clemson", a long range fund-raising project of the University. The University's original goal of 62 million dollars was surpassed with the next goal of 78 million also being surpassed in the campaign that ended on June 30, 1992. IPTAY provided three million dollars with ongoing opportunities for donors to be part of the Vickery Hall Academic Learning Center.

Vickery Hall, located on East Campus is a 27,000 square foot facility that houses the tutoring and advising programs for student-athletes. The building contains various-sized study and tutoring rooms used for individual study as well as small group instruction. Computer facilities, an office/reception area for the advising staff and an auditorium, also are contained in Vickery Hall.

The generous support of 18,200 loyal donors to IPTAY has allowed the organization to go beyond the funding of athletic scholarships by providing the financial basis for many of the unparalleled athletic facilities at Clemson.

Since 1978, IPTAY has provided the funding for $34 million of capital improvements in the area of athletics. These improvements include the expansion of the football stadium, the newly renovated baseball facility (Tiger Field), the new outdoor track, the indoor tennis facility, the soccer stadium, the weight room, the new golf practice area, a new cross country course, and the IPTAY/Ticket office facility.

IPTAY is also proud to provide the funding for Tiger Band. Each year IPTAY establishes financial support for travel, uniforms and equipment for this integral part of the Clemson athletic program.

While IPTAY is primarily concerned with athletic fundraising, the mission of Clemson University has not been overlooked. The IPTAY Academic Scholarship Endowment was created to help meet the need for more academic scholarships for non-athletes who are highly qualified academically. This scholarship endowment is funded by certain company gifts that are made as a result of employee contributions to IPTAY. In addition, the athletic department has made generous contributions to the endowment from athletic revenues.

The IPTAY Academic Fund is presently the largest scholarship endowment of its kind at Clemson providing $1.8 million in funds, currently benefiting more than 50 students. IPTAY's support extends to all of the student body.

The tremendous support of IPTAY is due, in large part, to the organizational makeup that allows donors to be as close to IPTAY as they are to their local IPTAY leadership. Each of South Carolina's 46 counties has an IPTAY County chairman, and every county is allotted an IPTAY representative for every 35 donors.

One important way IPTAY keeps in touch with its membership is the annual Clemson Club meeting held in April and May of each year. These meetings, which feature different coaches and administrators, are just one of the ways of making the local IPTAY members feel close to Clemson.

Clemson University will continue to be recognized and respected on the national level athletically and academically with the full support of IPTAY. IPTAY will continue to be successful because a loyal commitment to Clemson University is a way of life in the hearts of Clemson alumni and friends.

Helping Hands

by Annabelle Vaughan

Last fall, many members of the Tiger football squad had the opportunity to practice some things that are a little more important, and a lot more fun, than pass routes and defensive formations. Since Clemson had two open dates in 1991, the team's practice schedule was not quite as hectic during two weeks of the season. And in each of those two weeks, the Tigers had a very special group of visitors.

In the open week in September, a group of boys from the Tamassee DAR school came to spend an afternoon with the Tigers and in October, the team welcomed a group from the Boys Home of the South. After both visits, it was hard to tell whether the visitors or the hosts enjoyed themselves more.

The groups of boys came to Clemson in time to see the last half of practice. As the excited youngsters made their way onto the practice field, they were in awe at the size of the heavily padded Tigers. Coach Ken Hatfield came over to welcome the groups and spend a little time talking to each boy before he went back to his coaching duties. The boys then excitedly began to point out to each other all of the activities going on around them as the offense worked out on one part of the field and the defense worked out on the other side.

Each boy had been assigned a "partner" from the football team before they arrived, and they eagerly went to search out where their partner was on the field. Lively arguments broke out during both visits as the boys whose partners were defensive linemen bragged that they were the biggest and the other boys argued that their partners were the best.

Oddly enough, one of the main attractions for both groups was the water table, where understanding trainers passed out cups to thirsty hands a little smaller than the ones they usually handed the water to.

As soon as practice was over, the team gathered on field one and doffed their shoulder pads for their nightly post-practice conditioning sprints. Many of the visitors took that opportunity to try on the temporarily discarded shoulder pads and helmets. It was indeed quite a sight to see a small army parading around the field with jerseys that reached to their ankles, shoulder pads that were as wide as the boys were tall, and helmets that touched their shoulders.

After the runs were over, each visitor met his assigned "partner." Many of the boys walked off of the field hand-in-hand with the player with whom they would spend the evening, still bravely trying to balance the shoulder pads and helmets. The visitors journeyed to the weight room with their partners and once again were awed by the hustle and bustle, as well as the physiques of the players who were now their heroes. ("They're bigger than Hulk Hogan," said one boy.)

While the players went to shower and dress, the chaperones tried to gather the groups together for the ride over to the cafeteria, where they would meet their partners for dinner. When the Tamassee group was visiting, one boy was missing when it came time to board the vans for dinner.

After asking around, it was finally determined that the young man had followed his partner into the lockerroom. When he finally came back to join his group, he had a doughnut in each hand and one in his mouth. (It seemed the players were given doughnuts that night and the young visitor had decided to help himself). As expected, most of the other boys wished vehemently that they too had ventured into the lockerroom after his return and were a little out of sorts on the way to the dining hall.

But as soon as the kids arrived at the training table, their dissatisfaction ended as they realized they could choose anything they wanted from the buffet. Some ended up with nothing but macaroni, some had nothing but jello, and some had only a plate full of different kinds of meat. The self-serve soda fountain and soft ice cream machine became very congested, as the visitors helped themselves to as much as they could stand of both treats. As the players arrived, they sat with their new young friends and lively conversations ensued at each table. It was hard for anyone to tell whether the children or their slightly larger partners were having more fun.

After they were through eating, the players, one by one, asked permission to take their partners outside or for a walk around campus. When it was finally time to load the buses for the trip back, linebacker Kenzil Jackson was spotted heading over the hill to his dorm with his partner in tow. When the disappointed youngster was brought back, he said, "I wanted to spend the night!" Jackson was evidently willing.

There were many hugs and autographs before the groups were finally persuaded to board the vans and head back to their homes. Several of the children corresponded with their partners after their visits, and a few weeks later, a panicked Jackson called the Sports Information office on a Friday afternoon, just minutes before the team was to load the bus for a game. He had just remembered that the next day was his partner's birthday and he wasn't going to leave until he could get word to his new friend that all of the tackles he made the next day were going to be dedicated to him.

"Being with those kids really meant a lot to me," Jackson says. "It helps to put things in perspective and get your attitude right when you see those young minds who are watching everything you do. It made me realize that being in the spotlight brings a lot of responsibility with it. Besides that, the kids were fun. It wasn't like it was a hardship on us."

Dan Parks, recreation director from the Boys Home of the South in Pelzer, SC, says the group talked of little else for weeks following the visit to Tigertown. "It was an overwhelming experience for the kids. They were elated just to have the experience to meet Coach Hatfield and the players, much less spend some time with them. Coach Hatfield showed a lot of concern and I think the boys really saw something in him of value - something that will withstand the test of time. His strong Christian stand and his devout nature is something that is a great example to these boys. It was an experience that those kids will remember for the rest of their lives."

Tiger football players have been active in supporting disadvantaged youths. Quarterback Richard Moncrief is one of many Tigers who have been involved in this program.

John Harris

By Sanford Rogers

When watching a football game fans usually don't notice the offensive linemen unless a yellow flag appears in the area where a holding penalty is called. Then everyone tries to identify the guilty party. But for Center John Harris, being recognized among Clemson offensive linemen isn't a difficult task, for reasons other than a holding call.

Harris, who received his undergraduate degree in August, is the smallest of any of the Tiger's starting offensive linemen. On an offensive line that averages 301 pounds across the front, Harris is the smallest of the group, weighing only 270.

But don't think for a minute that being the smallest of the group bothers Harris. "I wouldn't mind being bigger," said the Roxboro, NC native. "But I think that being smaller is an advantage in some ways. With some of the nose guards that we will face in the ACC this year I think it will be an advantage for me to come off the ball quickly. By my being a little bit smaller, it will be easier to get that first step on some of those big guys."

Harris will be in his first year as the starting center for Clemson, but the red-shirt senior has a wealth of experience in the offensive line area. Last year he backed up All-American Jeb Flesch at the offensive guard position. Harris saw his most action last season against Wake Forest. He was in action in that contest for 52 snaps in a game that saw the Tigers rushing for 316 yards. "That game was a big one for me for several reasons", recalled Harris. "Not only did I play more plays than I ever had before, but I thought that I played well for almost every play I was in there. To me that is the most important thing when you are playing the game, to give the best effort every time you step on the field."

The move to the center position should be an easy one. "It is not that big of an adjustment moving to the center position," said Harris. "I was recruited out of high school as a center, then moved to offensive guard my second year here. The move back to center is good in a way. Now I should know what the other offensive linemen are doing on a play. To me the teamwork involved in playing on the offensive line should only improve."

Larry Van Der Heyden, who has been Harris's position coach the entire time he has been at Clemson, has confidence in the center's ability. "I think that John has paid his dues," said Van Der Heyden. "This will be his first year as a starting center for us, but John has worked hard enough to get the job done. I have all the confidence in the world in John. Anyone who has worked as hard as he has, both on the field and in the class room, will be a plus for this team. His leadership ability will be counted on this year."

Leadership, as on any team, will be important for the Tigers this year. "In football you need to have 11 people working together at the same time," said Harris. "I think the team unity on this squad is very good. Everyone realizes that if we are to achieve the goals we have set for the season everyone needs to be on the same wavelength."

Head Coach Ken Hatfield views Harris's role as an important one. "I think that John will be important to this team for several reasons. Not only is he moving into the starting center role, but his leadership ability will be highly valued."

Harris has worked hard in the classroom, with evidence of this being shown on August 8 when he received his undergraduate degree, just two days before fall gridiron workouts began. "Receiving that degree before I ever went on the field this year was a big relief," said Harris. "I have had many proud moments at Clemson, but walking across that stage was the proudest moment that me or my family has had during my time here."

"I will be taking graduate courses this fall, but knowing I have already achieved the biggest goal I had since entering Clemson gives me a sense of satisfaction."

Harris gives part of his credit to receiving his degree to the Clemson coaches. "I received my degree in recreation and parks administration, which has a number of afternoon classes and lab," recalled Harris. "There were a number of times when I had a late class or a lab and made it to practice after it had already started. The coaches were always understanding about that. They always knew the main reason I was at Clemson was to receive that degree, and that feeling carried over to the practice field."

He particularly noted Van Der Heyden's influence. "Coach 'Vandy' is a great coach, in my mind one of the best in the country. But he has meant more to me than football. The thing that Coach Van Der Heyden stresses more than anything else is effort. I know that once I get in the business world the effort that he stressed during my time here will benefit me."

Harris had a taste of the business world this past summer. He did his required internship for his degree at Hickory Knob State Park in McCormick, SC. "I did everything from working on the golf course to selling bait in the tackle shop. It was a great learning experience." The Clemson center came away from the summer with a clear career path. "I want to go into the resort management field. Whether it be near the beach or the mountains, that would be fine with me. Working for the public is what I hope to do."

One of the reasons Harris is so fond of resorts is his love of golf. In his personality profile for the Clemson Football Media Guide, he listed his craziest ambition as making the Professional Golf Tour. "It has always been a dream of mine to be on the PGA Tour. Unfortunately, the way I play golf, it will always be a dream. But the game of golf can be a relaxing time. I don't think that there is a better way to get away from the stress of everyday life than to be on a golf course."

John Harris, although small by some standards, should prove to be a big factor in Clemson's success in the upcoming year.

John Harris is one of the experienced offensive linemen Clemson will be counting on this year to fill the void by the graduation of Mike Brown and Curtis Whitley.

Out of respect for the Clemson football team, please wait until after the game to run to your Jeep® and Eagle dealer.

We realize that it could be difficult to sit through an entire game knowing that you could be driving one of these tempting new vehicles. Jeep Grand Cherokee's optional new 220 horsepower V8 engine is enough to send even the most die-hard fan to one of the exits. And as if that weren't enough, there's the totally new Eagle Vision TSi with a 214 horsepower engine and dual air bags standard. So please, be polite, look at the pictures, root for the home team and, if you must, leave at halftime. Your local dealer

Bowl Coalition

by Tim Bourret

In the world's quest to have a Division I college playoff system, yet retain the tradition of the college bowls, the world has established the Bowl Coalition. You don't need a master's degree from Harvard to understand the system, but it might help.

The bottom line for Clemson fans is that the winner of the ACC championship will be spending January 1 at the Orange, Sugar, Cotton or Fiesta Bowls. It is obvious that the stakes are now higher for the ACC championship. There are also agreements that give the second best and third best teams in the ACC automatic appearances in other traditionally sound postseason games.

"This is a landmark development for ACC football," said Clemson Head Coach Ken Hatfield. "This system allows us to bypass 70 years of paying dues. Other conferences have had to cultivate relationships with the major bowls (SWC with Cotton, SEC with Sugar, etc.) for many years to receive a berth. But, the ACC champ, Big East Champ and Notre Dame will now automatically go to one of those four bowls. And, it is even better for us, because we have the opportunity to go to any of the four as a league champion. The league champion of the SWC still has to go to the Cotton, they don't have a chance to go to the Orange. Overall, the bowl coalition is the best situation we can have in our current format."

Gene Corrigan, Commissioner of the Atlantic Coast Conference, was a key player in the creation of the Bowl Coalition. "The great thing about the Bowl Coalition is that it matches the champions against the champions (at Tier One). That is what we set out to do in the beginning.

"Five years ago we didn't have a bowl agreement in the ACC. Then we had four great years with the Citrus Bowl. But, this agreement takes us to a new level. Years ago we would dream about playing in these great games. Now, our champion will be there every year."

As far as the players are concerned, Clemson senior defensive back Norris Brown represents the feeling of most ACC players. "It is an added motivation to know that if you win the league you are going to Miami, Dallas, New Orleans or Phoenix. I like having the opportunity to go to any of those four cities. I think this is better than knowing way ahead of time where we are going. It is more exciting to go through the season as a candidate for one of those bowls.

"Since I have been here we have set a goal of winning the national championship. With this coalition it seems like there is a more clearcut path. Win the ACC, win one of those bowls and you have a great chance to win it all. Overall, it will bring more respect to the ACC. Since I have been here we seem to drop (in the polls) more than other teams when we lose a close game. Perhaps that won't be the case for ACC teams in the near future."

The rest of this article will attempt to explain the Bowl Coalition. The examples that follow the statements might make the formula more clear. If you still can't understand it, call us December 5.

General Principles

"The Orange, Sugar, Cotton and Fiesta Bowls (Tier One) have joined with the Atlantic Coast Conference, the Big East Conference and the University of Notre Dame in a three-year partnership to provide for the champions of the ACC and the Big East, and Notre Dame to appear in one of the aforementioned bowl games each year. The ACC and Big East champions, and Notre Dame are guaranteed a spot in the Orange, Sugar or Cotton Bowl in 1992, 1993 and 1994.

"The current commitments of the conference champions of the Big Eight to the Orange Bowl, the Southeastern to the Sugar Bowl and the Southwest to the Cotton Bowl remain in tact, leaving two additional berths open in the four Tier One coalition bowls.

"The two remaining spots in Tier One will be filled from a pool of "at-large" teams, which will include the next best team (as selected by the Tier One coalition bowls) from the following five conferences—ACC, Big East, Big Eight, PAC-10 (whose champion remains committed to the Rose Bowl) and the Southwest.

"The three "at-large teams not selected by the Tier One coalition will then be available for selection to the Tier Two bowls (Gator, Blockbuster & John Hancock) of the coalition.

"The team selection for all the bowls involved in the coalition (Tier One and Two) will be made following the completion of the SEC Championship game on December 5.

The Selection Process:

1. Whenever Notre Dame, the ACC and the Big East champs occupy the number-one and two rankings in the final regular season AP poll, they must play the National Championship game in the Fiesta Bowl. In other words, if Clemson is number-one and Notre Dame is number-two heading into the bowls, the Tigers and the Irish will meet in the Fiesta Bowl.

However, if the number-one and number-two teams are both from among the Big Eight, SEC and SWC champions, the top two teams will not meet in the Fiesta. Each champion attends the bowl he is affiliated with. In other words, if Florida is number-one and Texas A&M is number-two, those two teams would not meet each other. Florida would go to the Sugar and Texas A&M to the Cotton.

2. Whenever the number-one or two team in the final regular season AP poll come from among the ACC Champion, Big East Champ or Notre Dame, and the host conference champion from among the Sugar, Cotton or Orange Bowl is ranked Number-one or two, these two teams must play one another in the bowl of the host conference champion. In other words if Clemson is number-one and Nebraska is number-two after the regular season, the the Tigers will play the Cornhuskers in the Orange Bowl.

3. Barring the above circumstances, the Orange, Sugar and Cotton Bowls will select first in order of the final rankings (AP poll) of their respective host conference champions. The bowls will select from among the ACC Champ, the Big East Champ and Notre Dame. The bowls do not have to select in order of AP ranking. Following those three selections, the Fiesta Bowl will have two selections from the remaining pool of five teams.

4. Once these selections have been completed, the remaining three at-large teams will be available to the Tier Two bowls, which will select one team in order of per team net payout. In 1992 the order will be the Gator Bowl selecting first, followed by the Blockbuster and then the John Hancock Bowl.

5. The ACC and the Big East champions and Notre Dame have the right to pass a Tier One Clemson and N.C. State will be chasing the ACC title, which now means a berth in the Orange, Sugar, Cotton or Fiesta Bowls.

Hatfield, who has taken teams to a bowl 10 straight years, feels the coalition is a landmark in ACC football history.

selection for a higher payout, to avoid a rematch of a regular season game, or to avoid playing in a particular bowl for the third straight year.

6. A team may pass a selection to a Tier Two bowl only to avoid a rematch of a regular season game, or to avoid playing in a particular bowl game for a third consecutive year.

Other Bowl commitments for 1992

1. Penn State, provided it has the minimum six Division I wins, will play in the Blockbuster Bowl.
2. The Citrus Bowl will match the number-two team in the Big Ten against the number-two team in the SEC. (It does not have to be the second place team in each league, merely the second best team in each league as chosen by the Citrus Bowl.)
3. The number-three team in the ACC, will be the host team in the Peach Bowl. This is not necessarily the third-place team in the conference standings, it is the third best team as chosen by the Peach Bowl.
4. The Holiday Bowl will match the number-three team of the Big Ten against the Western Athletic Champion.
5. The Rose Bowl will continue to match the champion of the Big 10 against the champion of the Pac-10.
6. The number-three team in the Pac-10 will go to the Freedom Bowl.
7. The Gator Bowl will match the number-three SEC team against a Tier Two coalition team.
8. The Liberty Bowl will take the top service academy team.

Here is an example of the bowl coalition at work for last year.

1991 Example

*Final Regular season AP poll for 1991:

1. Miami (Big East Champ)
2. Washington (PAC-10 Champ)
3. Florida (SEC Champ)
4. Michigan (Big Ten Champ)
5. Florida State (ACC Champ)
6. Penn State (Big 10 #2)
7. Iowa (Big 10 #3 team)
8. Alabama (SEC #2 team)
9. Texas A&M (SWC Champ)
10. Tennessee (SEC #3 team)
11. Nebraska (Big Eight Champ)
12. East Carolina (Independent)
13. Clemson (ACC #2 team)
14. California (PAC-10 #2 team)
15. Colorado (Big Eight #2 Team)
16. Syracuse (Big East #2 team)
17. Stanford (PAC-10 #3 Team)
18. Notre Dame
19. Virginia (ACC #3 Team)
20. Oklahoma (Big Eight #3 Team)
21. N.C. State
22. UCLA
23. Tulsa
24. Georgia
25. Ohio State

Baylor is #2 team in SWC, but unranked in final regular season poll.

*If the coalition was used last year, the following matchups would have occurred (provided bowls made selections according to ranking. They do not have to do that in 1992). The 1992 conference affiliations are used in this example. Florida State, by virtue of #5 ranking, is considered ACC champion and Penn State is considered a Big Ten member for this hypothetical scenario. It is interesting to note that Clemson still would have played California if the coalition formula was used last year.

Tier One

Sugar: #3 Florida (SEC Champ) vs. #1 Miami (Big East Champ)
Cotton: #9 Texas A&M (SWC Champion) vs. #5 Florida State (ACC Champion)
Orange: #11 Nebraska (Big Eight Champ) vs. #18 Notre Dame
Fiesta: #13 Clemson (ACC #2 team) vs. #14 California (PAC-10 #2 Team)

Tier Two

Gator: #15 Colorado (Big Eight #2) vs. #10 Tennessee (SEC #3 team)
Blockbuster: #16 Syracuse (Big East #2) vs. TBA (will be Penn State in 1992 only)
John Hancock: Baylor (SWC #2) vs. TBA

Other Bowls

Rose: #2 Washington vs. #4 Michigan
Citrus: #8 Alabama (SEC #2 team) vs. #6 Penn State (Big 10 #2 team)
Peach: #19 Virginia vs. TBA
Holiday: #7 Iowa vs. Brigham Young (WAC Champ)
Freedom: #17 Stanford vs. TBA

1988 Example

*Just four years ago the top four teams in the final regular season poll all came from the same side of the equation. For the sake of this example, do not assume that Notre Dame and Miami played each other in 1988.

1. Notre Dame
2. Miami (Big East Champ)
3. West Virginia (Big East #2)
4. Florida State (ACC Champ)
5. Southern Cal (PAC-10 Champ)
6. Nebraska (Big Eight Champ)
7. Auburn (SEC Champ)
8. Arkansas (SEC #2)
9. UCLA (PAC-10 #2)
10. Oklahoma (Big Eight #2)
11. Michigan (Big Ten Champ)
12. Oklahoma State
13. Clemson (ACC #2)
14. Houston (SWC Champ)
15. Wyoming (WAC Champ)
16. LSU (SEC #2)
17. Syracuse
18. Washington State (PAC-10 #3)
19. Georgia
20. Alabama

Tier I

Fiesta: #1 Notre Dame vs. #2 Miami (Big East Champ)
Orange: #6 Nebraska (Big Eight Champ) vs. #3 West Virginia (Big East #2)
Sugar: #7 Auburn (SEC Champ) vs. #4 Florida State (ACC Champ)
Cotton: #14 Houston (SWC Champ) vs. #9 UCLA (Pac 10 #2)

Tier II

Gator: #10 Oklahoma vs. #16 LSU (SEC #3)
Blockbuster: #13 Clemson vs. TBA
Hancock: Texas A&M vs. TBA

Other Bowls

Rose: #5 Southern Cal (Pac 10 Champ) vs. #11 Michigan (Big Ten Champ)
Citrus: #8 Arkansas (SEC #2) vs. Indiana (Big 10 #2)

Andy Pujats

by Sam Blackman

Making the most of soccer opportunities has already made Clemson All-American soccer defender Andy Pujats successful.

From playing youth soccer in Dallas, TX, and around the globe, Pujats has taken advantage of opportunities the sport provides enroute to Clemson University where he is now one of the nation's best collegiate players. In 1990, he was named second-team All-ACC, then in 1991, he was elevated to first team. His most prestigious award came last season when he was named All-American.

While growing up, Pujats learned the game from his two older brothers. Their knowledge and experience helped make him a better player.

"I have been playing soccer since I was five," said Pujats. "My brothers and I have always played soccer and they are responsible for making me an improved player. We always worked together and they taught me different points of the game."

Pujats also took advantage of playing soccer in one of the finest youth soccer organizations in America. By playing on local club teams, he had the opportunity to travel and become one of the most highly sought after high school players in the country his senior season.

"In the Dallas and Arlington area, we have the largest soccer association in Texas and the second largest in the country," added Pujats. "Because of this organization, I traveled abroad and picked up invaluable experience."

Pujats was a member of the Region III Olympic Development team. He also led one of his club teams, Titans 71, to the state and regional titles in 1987. The same team finished third in the under-16 nationals. During his youth soccer days, he traveled to Brazil and Scotland.

Pujats also traveled abroad last summer as a member of the United States team in the World University games where he played right back.

"The chance to play soccer and travel to different countries is a great opportunity. I have played in Brazil, England, Scotland, and Korea. There are not too many people who have this chance to travel around the world, particularly at my age. The traveling has in essence given me another education. You learn a great deal on the trips and the most important lesson that stays with me is how to get along with people, and adapt to the various cultures. Soccer has definitely given me another education.

"The most interesting trip I made was with the United States team in the World University games last summer. In Seoul, South Korea, I saw great soccer and learned more about the game by watching other teams from the participating countries. Traveling to different countries and talking to people from different lands make you appreciate America and what it has to offer."

Another important lesson Pujats has learned from the game is the invaluable concept of team work.

Pujats plays defender for the Tigers and this position is sometimes taken for granted. The defenders do not score often and usually are not part of the attack. They are the offensive linemen of soccer.

"The confidence of a team begins in the defense starting with the goalkeeper. If people have confidence in the defense this will give the midfielders and strikers more confidence to go forward on the attack. The best offense is a good defense.

"Playing defender makes you respect the game more; after all, you don't play to enhance your statistics, but you play for the team. If you know you prevented the other team from scoring goals, it is a great feeling. If our attackers score more goals, we did something better than they did. You feel a sense of accomplishment and pride.

Pujats, a returning All-American defender, is a major reason Clemson is a preseason Top 10 team and NCAA title contender.

"If I have confidence in the players around me, I feel like going with the attack and this enables me to play two roles as an attacker or a defender."

Pujats is definitely an important part of Clemson's offense. He scored three goals and had five assists in 1991, and both are high figures for a defender.

Still another opportunity the game of soccer has provided for Pujats is the chance to play soccer at Clemson and in the prestigious Atlantic Coast Conference. The ACC is recognized as the most competitive conference in the nation.

"I chose Clemson because it is well respected academically and athletically. Clemson is consistent in its soccer program. Coach I.M. Ibrahim's reputation for winning, and being outstanding in all areas of the program were big selling points. Playing in the ACC and having the country's best facilities along with the great academic program at Clemson were the other big factors.

"The people at Clemson are so nice, and they immediately accepted me. Clemson is a role model for other programs around the country. If other teams have not seen us play; they have heard about us. My game has improved because of the coaching and the great facilities."

Pujats is a management major and his present plans have him staying in the up-state area.

"I would like to stay around Clemson or at least the east coast, possibly working with my father and his company. My father is a distributor of machinery parts and I would not mind starting a branch in this area. I really have not decided.

As far as the 1992 Clemson soccer team, Pujats has great expectations and has set some high goals for the Tigers.

"I want to win a title. We have not won a championship except for the ACC regular season title in 1990. I would like to win the ACC and National Championship in my senior year.

"If we pull together and have the right chemistry, we can win titles. We have the players to do it. My most memorable game at Clemson is the 6-0 win over South Carolina last season. We could not do anything wrong. Everybody played well for us in this game, it was a great example of team work."

Even though Pujats may not play soccer after his collegiate days, the education he has obtained from Clemson and the sport will continue to be responsible for many opportunities and successes afforded him later in life.

Tiger Band

By Beth McInnis

Some say that coming to a Clemson football game is like coming to a family reunion. It's a warm, friendly place (unless you are the Tigers' opponent that day) where you are sure to find family, new and old, that is tied together with one common thread...Clemson University.

As we start the 97th season of Clemson football with all of its color and pageantry, we also start another season of Tiger Band. Over the years, Tiger Band has become synonymous with Clemson athletics. Be it football, basketball or soccer, the band has remained a faithful family member, growing, nurturing and supporting the athletic department and the University.

This year Tiger Band adds a new face to the family tree. Dr. Mark Hosler comes to Clemson from The Ohio State University, home of the Buckeyes, to assume the position of Director of Bands.

A native of Derby, Ohio, Hosler holds a bachelor's degree from Ohio State in 1976. He also completed his masters (1985) and Ph.D (1992) at Ohio State University.

Prior to joining the band staff at Clemson, Dr. Hosler served as an Assistant Director of The Ohio State University Marching Band for three years. During this time he also was a graduate teaching associate in the band performance and music education divisions of the Ohio State School of Music. During his tenure he taught classes in marching band techniques, band conducting and secondary level instrumental music techniques, as well as supervising student teachers.

Prior to returning to Ohio State, Dr. Hosler served as Director of Bands at Westfall High School in Williamsport, OH for 10 years and as Director of Bands at Westland High School in Galloway, OH for three years. His bands received critical acclaim throughout the state for their outstanding performances.

Dr. Hosler is active as a marching band clinician and adjudicator. He is a member of the College Band Director's National Association, the North American Brass Band Association and the Music Educator's National Conference.

Dr. Hosler's wife, Cheryl, also joins the Tiger Band staff this year as the flag line choreographer. The only member of the Hosler family not involved with Tiger Band directly is their daughter Valerie, who is four. Maybe we'll see her on Frank Howard Field in about 15 years!

Since arriving in mid-June, Dr. Hosler has been busy viewing videos, writing shows and getting to know incoming freshmen. He was present at several orientation sessions and is positive about the new-member turnout.

Dr. Mark Hosler is Clemson's new director of bands.

"We have a good group this year. They are enthusiastic and excited," he commented. "I am looking forward to the season because we have such a good group, but also because I am looking forward to seeing football in Death Valley. I have watched games from here on television and the atmosphere is something special. I can't wait until I see them run down the hill for the first time. I enjoyed Big Ten football for many years, but I am excited about ACC football."

Dr. Hosler is familiar with many traditions at Ohio State, but there is one that his alma mater has in common with Clemson. Both schools dot the I as a part of their pregame or halftime festivities. At Ohio State they dot the I in script Ohio and at Clemson they dot the I in Tigers.

Tiger Band continues its tradition of excellence this year with 200 plus members. Each member of the band arrived well before the other Clemson students this year. Band camp started for freshmen and veteran members one week before classes started. Members practiced daily, and like our football players, worked two-a-days regularly.

During the regular academic year Tiger Band practices three days a week from 4 to 6 pm with the percussion corps and flags putting in extra time. Football Saturdays see members rising early for a pre-dawn warmup before they assemble for the traditional parade into Memorial Stadium.

Today Tiger Band sends off the 1992 season traditionally but with a little twist ... literally. Pregame festivities include a performance of "God Bless America" and the Clemson University Alma Mater. Mrs. Rudy Poole, wife of former IPTAY President George Poole, will dot the "I" this afternoon. As the team travels around the stadium and assembles at Howard's Rock, Tiger Band will play the "Orange Bowl March" and will break into "Tiger Rag" as our own goosebumps grow.

The "twist" in today's show is at halftime when Tiger Band performs a variety of tunes from the late fifties and the early sixties. This "Roots of Rock & Roll" show will feature Tiger Band's twirlers and flag corps. In keeping with tradition, the halftime show will close with "The Song that Shakes the Southland...Tiger Rag." The Alma Mater will also be played at the game's conclusion.

As this new season opens, Clemson family from near and far gather for another afternoon of fun, fellowship and football. Welcome to the family, Dr. Hosler. We salute you, Tiger Band and your commitment for Clemson's tradition of excellence.

Strength Training

One of Clemson's most impressive athletic facilities is not quite as visible as the mammoth Death Valley, even though it may be an even more important reason for the Tigers' success. Clemson's strength training facility, located in Jervy Athletic Center, provides Clemson athletes with the very best in equipment, supervision and atmosphere, as the Tiger strength training staff knows that success in the area of strength training will mean success on the football field.

Head Strength Coach Gary Wade and his staff work constantly to ensure that their facility is one of the nation's best. Several renovations made over the last several years have ensured that it is among the best, on the collegiate and professional levels. It is no accident that the Tigers have posted a 63-18-3 record, won four ACC Championships, had 16 first or second-team All-Americans, and 48 first-team all-conference selections since Wade joined the Clemson staff in 1985.

Wade and his assistants, Scott Bennett, Al Caronia, Jeff Fish, Jeff Looney, and Scott Hines personally supervise the individual weight programs of hundreds of athletes. The strength training staff spends long hours working around the various schedules of each sport and even takes the facility on the road when the Tiger football team plays in a bowl game.

Emergency Services

The Clemson University Athletic Department provides the following for your safety and emergency medical needs:

1. Advanced cardiac life-support stations in four locations (North stands, Upper North deck, South stands, Upper South deck). These units are staffed with skill-care nurses, physicians, cardiologists, internists, paramedics, and EMTs.
2. Mobile units of EMTs and paramedics are strategically located throughout the entire stadium.
3. Ambulances with life-support equipment are available in North stand and South stand areas and have prearranged routes for evacuation to local hospitals.

Learn to recognize these personnel and facilities.

WHAT TO DO IF EMERGENCIES ARISE

Please step back and give the organized EMS personnel room to work. Well-intentioned attempts to help by untrained persons interfere with the efficiency of the EMS system. If you have basic or advanced training in specific life-support methods, make your qualifications known and offer your help. Untrained personnel can be frequently more harmful than helpful.

Most emergencies occurring at the stadium result from pre-existing medical conditions. Bring your medical identification card or wear medical identification jewelry. Moderation is the key with dress, food, beverage intake and physical exertion. Our two more frequent serious medical problems at football games are allergic reactions to insect stings and heart attacks.

INSECT STINGS: Common at outdoor events. Treat immediately with ice. Seek medical advice. If allergic, carry a kit from your physician with you.

HOW TO RECOGNIZE A HEART ATTACK:

The symptoms of a heart attack vary, but the usual warning signs are:

1. Uncomfortable pressure, fullness, squeezing or pain in the center of your chest lasting for two minutes or more.
2. Pain spreading to the shoulders, neck, jaw, arms, or back.

3. Dizziness, fainting, sweating, nausea and/or shortness of breath.

Expect a Denial

Frequently heart attack victims deny they're having a heart attack. The event is frightening or they don't want the embarrassment of a false alarm. Therefore, they delay getting help by ignoring their symptoms or rationalizing, "it's just indigestion."

Find out what's really wrong. Prompt response can dramatically increase chances of survival and recovery.

New therapies have been developed that can minimize heart damage and save lives if treatment begins within the first few hours of symptom onset. "Time is muscle." Get help or get to a hospital immediately.

Clemson Memorial Stadium

In the first 50 years of Death Valley, the Tigers have won 74 percent of their games.

In 1991, two very special anniversaries in the Clemson football tradition were observed. Not only did the 1991 season mark the 10th anniversary of Clemson's National Championship season, but it also marked the 50th season of the place where the Tigers won five games that year: Memorial Stadium.

In the first 50 years of Memorial Stadium, Clemson has a record of 170-62-6, including a 12-0-1 ledger over the last two seasons. Clemson has a 15-game unbeaten streak at home and has a career winning ratio of 74 percent entering 1992.

The stadium has definitely been good to the Tigers who call it home, but the stadium was constructed against the advice of at least one Clemson coach. Just before head coach Jess Neely left for Rice University after the 1939 season, he gave Clemson a message. "Don't ever let them talk you into building a big stadium," he said. "put about 10,000 seats behind the Y.M.C.A. That's all you'll ever need".

Instead of following Coach Neely's advice, however, Clemson officials decided to build the new stadium in a valley on the western part of campus. The place would take some clearing (there were many trees), but luckily there were no hedges.

The crews went to work: clearing, cutting, pouring, and forming. Finally, on September 19, 1942, Clemson Memorial Stadium opened with the Tiger Football team thrashing Presbyterian College, 32-13. Those 20,000 seats installed for Opening Day would soon grow...and grow and grow. This year Clemson celebrates its 51st year in this outstanding facility.

When the original part of the stadium was built in the early 40's, much of the work was done by scholarship athletes, including many football players. The first staking out of the stadium was done by two members of the football team, A.N. Cameron and Hugh Webb. Webb returned to Clemson years later to be an architecture professor, and Cameron went on to become a civil engineer in Louisiana.

The building of the stadium did not proceed without a few problems. One day during the clearing of the land, one young football player proudly announced that he was not allergic to poison oak. He then commenced to attack the poison oak with a swing blade, throwing the plants to and fro. The next day, however, the boy was swollen twice his size and had to be put in the hospital.

There are many other stories about the stadium including one stating that Frank Howard put a chew of tobacco in each corner of the stadium as the concrete was poured.

Howard says that the seeding of the grass caused a few problems. "About 40 people and I laid sod on the field," he says. "After three weeks, on July 15, we had only gotten halfway through. I told them that it had taken us three weeks to get that far, and I would give them three more week's pay for however long it took. I also told them we would have 50 gallons of ice cream when we got through. After that it took them three days to do the rest of the field. Then we sat down in the middle of the field and ate up that whole 50 gallons."

Howard says that on the first day of the first game in the stadium, "the gates were hung at 1:00 PM and we played at 2:00 PM." But that would be all of the construction for a while. Then in 1958, 18,000 sideline seats were added and, in 1960, a total of 5,658 West end zone seats were added in response to increasing attendance. With the large end zone, "Green Grass" section, this expansion increased capacity to about 53,000.

Later, upper decks were added to each side of the stadium as crowds swelled - the first one in 1978 and the second in 1983. This increased capacity to over 80,000, which makes it one of the 10 largest on-campus stadiums in the country.

The effect spiraling inflation has had in this century can be dramatically seen in the differences in stadium construction. The original foundation of the stadium was built at a cost of $125,000 or at $6.25 a seat. The most recent upper deck was finished in 1983 at a cost of $13.5 million, or $866 a seat.

Through the years, Memorial Stadium has become known as "Death Valley." It was tagged this by the late Presbyterian coach, Lonnie McMillan. After bringing his P.C. teams to Clemson for years and getting whipped, McMillan said the place was like Death Valley. A few years later the name stuck.

On November 16, 1974 the playing surface was named Frank Howard Field for the legendary coach because of his long service and dedication to the University.

Athletic Director Bobby Robinson says that Memorial Stadium has many features that make it a top facility. "One thing that makes it so good is the number of sideline seats," he says. "We don't think there is a bad seat in the house."

"We also have outstanding dressing rooms, press facilities, and ample parking nearby. Another unique feature of the stadium is the number of private boxes."

Luckily, the stadium wasn't built behind the Y.

Howard's Rock is one of the many features that make Death Valley unique.

The Northport Tigers

by Sanford Rogers

Many towns across America form sister city relationships with other towns that feature some common bond or interest.

If the city of Clemson were to look for a sister city there would be several locations from which to choose. But, when thinking of selecting that sister city, Northport, New York probably wouldn't be at the top of many lists. After all, what could those two cities have in common? Clemson, SC and Northport, NY are not usually mentioned in the same breath.

But, when taking a closer look, Northport, NY does have some things in common with Clemson. The most striking similarities come from Northport High School, and the football program.

Northport High School, under the direction of Head Football Coach Kip Lukralle, has installed a rock by the entrance of its football field. The similarities between Clemson and Northport don't end there. Not only does Northport have a rock, but their mascot is the tiger, complete with the tiger paw for its logo. The 1991 Northport team finished the season as conference champions, without losing a game at home and with a 9-1 overall record. This certainly is comparable to the Clemson team from last season, as the Tigers finished the season unbeaten in Death Valley, as well winning the Atlantic Coast Conference Championship, on the way to a 9-1-1 regular season.

The rock, installed after the first game of last season, a game which Northport lost on the road, obviously fired up the Northport Tigers. They went on to win the rest of the games, finishing with a 9-1 record, and winning the Rutgers Cup, which is given to the best team in Suffolk County.

Where did the idea for a rock (it really looks like a boulder to us) come from? "Some of our players had talked about the rock at Clemson for a couple of years," said Lukralle. "The way their crowd reacts when the team enters the top of Death Valley is something to see. We were just hoping that the rock would give our team something to identify with."

With the help of booster club member Ron Johansen and Kings Park recycler Ray Schleider, the rock became a reality for Northport on October 5, 1991. Complete with a police escort, the rock made its way onto the Northport Campus. "Mr Schleider was really generous," said Lukralle. "Not only did he donate the rock, he spent a couple of hours placing it just the right way. It sure was a special effort on his part, one that was greatly appreciated by our team.

"It was installed the day after we lost our only game of the season," said Lukralle. "The funny thing was that most people did not notice it until coming back to school on that Monday. By then the coaches had painted Northport High School and tiger paws all over it. From that point on the rock was a rallying point for the team and our fans. Prior to the kickoff of our games our guys would gather around the rock while one of our team captains would stand on top of the rock and jump into their teammates. It got the team and our fans excited."

The rock also had a meaning for teams playing Northport at Tiger Field. "There is no doubt that it is an intimidating factor," said Lukralle. "To enter the field you have to go by the rock. The opponents know that this is a source of pride for our team. With no one beating us at home last season I look for that intimidation factor to continue."

Northport Quarterback David Sumner was impressed with the rock. "After we had lost our first game of the season our team was a little bit down," recalled Sumner. "The rock just seemed to bring our whole team together. The first time I thought about us having a rock at Northport was when I saw a Clemson game on television. When I saw the Clemson team at the top of the hill touching the rock it just gave me chills. I thought it was one of the coolest things in the world."

Clemson players have been rubbing Howard's Rock for "Special Powers" prior to games since 1967.

Did the rock really have an effect on the Tigers successful gridiron season? Booster Club member Ron Johansen thinks that it did. "That rock was just a part of the success," noted Johansen. "Northport didn't have the most athletic team, or the most talented group, they just had guys who gave everything they had to be a success. That rock just gave the boys a focal point. You could say that the rock was that extra something that provided a spark."

The rock still is a point of interest for Northport, even in the summer. "I still see guys who are in the weight room or running on the field go by and touch the rock this summer," said Lukralle. "They seem to see the rock as good luck. After last year I don't believe I would argue with them."

Sumner, who is at the University of Pittsburgh on a football scholarship this fall, has hopes of seeing the rock at Clemson. "To play a game in Death Valley would be quite an experience," stated Sumner. "I know that Clemson and Pittsburgh are not scheduled to play each other, but it would be out of this world for it to happen. I know it would be an odd request for a visiting player, but I would have to go to the top of the hill and touch the rock."

For some reason it just does not seem possible the Clemson team would allow such an action. Maybe if he explained his reasons the Tigers might understand. Especially if Northport was a sister city.

NOTE: Special thanks to Tony Bellissimo of The Observer for the original article on the Northport Rock and for the photo.

You Make The Call

Question: In February of 1993, Clemson will sign a new football recruiting class. Does their signing of a national letter of intent change an IPTAY member's ability to have contact with them? In other words, once they have signed with Clemson can an IPTAY member write letters and give congratulatory phone calls?

Answer: No. Despite the fact that the contact limitations applicable to the institutional staff members are greatly reduced, the limitations on other representatives of Clemson's athletic interests do not change. IPTAY members are not allowed to have any contact with these prospects on or off campus between February and the day they enter Clemson. This includes written correspondence and telephone calls. It also carries over to professional athletes, who are considered representatives of Clemson's athletic interests until the day they die. If Clemson signs an outstanding center next February, Washington Redskins Super Bowl Champion Jeff Bostic is not allowed to send him a letter or telephone him to wish him well at Clemson, until after he enrolls.

Nature Is Truly A Work Of Art. It's Our Responsibility To Keep It That Way.

Nature, our most valuable resource, is a delicately balanced ecosystem entrusted to all of us. At Laidlaw Environmental Services, we take seriously our responsibility to manage, protect and restore the environment.

As the first statewide sponsor of South Carolina Waterfowl Association's Adopt-A-Habitat program, we helped provide nesting areas for many of our state's wood ducks. We helped spur a new industry by turning a clay mine in Clarendon County into a new crawfish farm; and our exciting, multimedia educational program, Earth Academy, is teaching children and adults how they can be part of the solution to recycling and hazardous waste problems.

Managing and protecting the environment is an art and a science. We will continue to search for ways to involve all of us, as partners, through education, reclamation, and conservation.

Helping Preserve Our Resources
Through Conservation, Land
Reclamation, and Education.

The South Carolina Waterfowl Association's award for Corporate Sponsor of the Year 1991-92 was given to recognize Laidlaw Environmental's dedication to the conservation and enhancement of South Carolina's wetlands and wetland wildlife resources.

Vickery Hall

Clemson University's commitment to provide its student-athletes with the very best of facilities is evident in many ways. From the soaring upper decks of Memorial Stadium, to the state-of-the-art strength training facility, young men and women from all 18 of Clemson's varsity sports have the very best in facilities for training and competition. But Clemson's commitment to provide its student-athletes with awesome facilities doesn't apply only to areas of athletic competition, but to academic life as well.

The most convincing evidence of this commitment is Clemson University's Academic Learning Center, Vickery Hall, which opened in the spring of 1991. The $3 million facility is among the first in the nation devoted entirely to the athletic-academic advising program. The two-story, 27,000-square-foot building is open throughout the day and into the evening to accommodate the extended schedules of student-athletes, and consolidates a variety of academic services for their use.

The goal of the facility is to function as a support system in providing the student-athlete the opportunity to reach his or her full potential. Vickery Hall is a commitment by the Clemson University Athletic Department to give each student-athlete a meaningful opportunity to make his or her Clemson experience a fulfilling one, not only during his or her years at Clemson, but long after the student-athlete enters the professional world.

"Vickery Hall is one of the most important facilities the Clemson University Athletic Department has ever built or will ever build. It makes a philosophical statement about the institutional commitment - giving our student-athletes the same opportunity to achieve their full potential academically that we give them athletically. We're very serious about that," said Athletic Director Bobby Robinson.

Given the time pressures of athletic participation and practice, student athletes face a difficult balancing act in trying to perform well both on the playing field and in the classroom. With respect to this, the Clemson academic advising program has provided one of the best academic tutoring and advising programs in the nation over the last several years. The completion of Vickery Hall gives the Academic Advising Program an even greater opportunity to help student-athletes reach the short-term goal of graduation and the long-term goal of success in the world.

Vickery Hall is located in the mainstream of east campus, behind Jordan Hall at the top of Bryan Mall. The facility is impressive aesthetically, but even more so for the many purposes it serves. The main entrance to the building is a 1,570-square foot reception/office area, comprised of five advisors' offices, two graduate student offices, and a conference room. Also located on the bottom floor is the office of Bill D'Andrea, the director of Clemson's student-athlete enrichment program.

The building also boasts a 175-seat auditorium to be used for classes, team meetings, review sessions, and seminars. The various speakers and lecturers who will come to work with Clemson student-athletes as part of the student-enrichment program will also use this facility. The auditorium is equipped with a projection booth and state-of-the-art audio and video equipment and is available to other campus groups when not in use for athletic advising.

The 13,000-square-foot study and tutoring area on the second floor comprises the majority of the center and is used primarily during the evening hours. A large 65-seat study room and nine 20-seat study rooms are designed as classrooms with freestanding desks. One-on-one or small group instruction takes place in 28 small tutoring rooms accommodating eight to 10 students each, two medium tutoring rooms for 20 people each and three large tutoring rooms for 40 people each.

Computing Facilities

The Department of Student-Athlete Enrichment Services has recognized the need for students to have access to high-quality computing equipment and has made a commitment to providing the student-athletes at Clemson with such equipment.

Located on the first floor of Vickery Hall is the Department of Student-Athlete Enrichment Services Microcomputer Laboratory. The lab is open six days a week, for 16 hours a day on Monday through Thursday.

The lab staff consists of mostly graduate students, many of whom are pursuing advanced degrees in computer science. Lab staff members are available for tutoring of any Computer Science course as well as the many management, engineering and business courses that deal with personal computers. Student-athletes may also arrange tutoring sessions outside normal lab hours any time during the school year.

Computers in the lab can reach many of the other machines on campus, including the NAS mainframe, and are in turn, connected to a world-wide internetwork, allowing lab machines to access computing resources throughout the world. This also allows access to lab resources from computers throughout the world.

The following is a list of some of the equipment available:

- * 18 Macintosh personal computers
- * 15 IBM personal computers
- * 5 Laser Printers
- * 2 Novell Network Servers (allows users to access and share files from different computers around campus.)

The $3 million Academic Learning Center, Vickery Hall, is among the first in the nation devoted entirely to the athletic-academic advising program.

Student-Athlete Career Assistance Program

The Student-Athlete Career Assistance Program is one of the most important programs provided by the staff of Vickery Hall. The philosophy of this program is to provide help in securing summer employment and to aid in meeting long-term career goals.

By using the resources available to the University, Alumni Center and the Athletic Department, Bill D'Andrea is working to establish a network of businesses, companies, and executives who will help assist with The Summer Employment Assistance Program. The program's main goal is to provide the student-athlete with a job experience and a work history, which he or she can apply to his or her academic discipline.

The Long Term Career Assistance Program will be coordinated from the academic colleges, the Placement Center, and through the Athletic Department contacts. This program is designed to better prepare the student-athlete for full-time employment and will focus on resume writing and interview techniques so that each student-athlete will be competitive and aggressive when dealing with companies who visit the Clemson campus.

Personal Growth Program

Another aspect of Clemson University's commitment to help student-athletes reach their potential in all areas of their life - academically, athletically, and socially, is the recently implemented personal growth program. This program is one of the many purposes of Vickery Hall. This particular area of student development is designed to enhance and support the lives of student-athletes during their enrollment in college as well as in their life experiences after graduation.

Bobby Douglas, the Development Coordinator, and the Vickery Hall staff realize that student-athletes have more obligations than a regular college student. The personal growth program seeks to eliminate some of the stresses of adjustment to the higher level of academics and athletics. It is the group's special task to assist the student-athlete by creating a finely tuned balance of all areas to insure success in obtaining a Clemson University degree, by supporting successful athletic practice and competition, enhancing personal growth, and helping with the transition to life after college.

A series of personal growth programs will be offered to student-athletes throughout each semester. Some programs may accomplish their objectives in one session, while others may be ongoing throughout the academic year. Some of the personal growth programs are as follows:

Vickery Hall's Microcomputer Lab is open six days a week for the use of student-athletes.

Alcohol and Drug Issues:

The intent of this program is to provide the student-athlete with an overview of the disease of addictions and chemical dependence. Emphasis will be placed on providing basic awareness of how substance abuse effects individuals, families and athletic teams.

Current Topics of Concern:

The idea behind this segment of the Personal Growth Plan is to address issues that effect students such as human sexuality, birth control, date rape, etc.

Career Preparation:

The Career Preparation Plan is to encourage all student-athletes to think about life after sports and after graduation. Many sources of information will be available, from career testing to self-paced computer programs, and even with resume preparation and interview skills.

Nutrition and Eating Disorders:

Eating habits and proper diet are very important in maintaining a sound body and mind. The focus of this program revolves around presenting information so that student-athletes can analyze their own eating habits and carefully choose a balanced diet with enough calories to maintain good health.

Personal Finance:

Student-athletes on athletic scholarships are not allowed to have jobs during the academic year. Therefore, it is important to budget personal finances so they do not run out before the semester. This program not only discusses budgeting but also the responsible use of credit.

Stress Management:

All student-athletes face additional concerns during their college days than normal students. Many times these add stress to the everyday lives of student-athletes. The object of this program is to teach the student-athlete ways of identifying and handling personal stress so it does not interfere with the maintenance of good mental and physical health.

Study Skills/Time Management: These two topics are combined because a major part of developing good study skills involves having the time to delegate to studying. Objectives of this program are to expose student-athletes to different types of study techniques that are proven effective.

Motivation/Self Esteem:

The objective of this program is to improve the level of self esteem for student-athletes to positively impact their productivity in all areas of campus life.

Almeda Rogers Jacks, Class of '74 and '75, Clemson University's vice president for student affairs and first female vice president, says Education Professor William Pennscott brought far more to the classroom than information:

"Dr. Pennscott taught me so much, by example, about how to treat people. He is absolutely fair, and he has a way of making you want to give your best. His personal integrity and his everyday demeanor underlie both his teaching and the way he behaves toward others. His influence continues to help me every day, particularly in dealing with students and their parents."

Great Tiger Wins In Death Valley

by Sam Blackman

It was fortunate for Clemson that former IPTAY Executive Secretary Gene Willimon acted when he did.

Otherwise Clemson might not have beaten Virginia, 40-35, on Sept. 24, 1966, in the season opener for the Tigers.

It was Willimon's idea to put a rock from Death Valley, CA on a pedestal at the top of the hill during the summer of 1966, where the Tigers enter the stadium and make their famous entrance. Alumnus S.C. Jones gave former Head Coach Frank Howard the rock after a visit to Death Valley, CA. Jones must have thought it to be an appropriate gift to Howard as the stadium had been called Death Valley by friend and foe alike for many years prior to 1966.

Howard told Willimon to do something with the rock. Willimon had a brain storm and immediately came up with the idea of putting it on a pedestal overlooking the playing field where it still sits today, over 25 years later.

Even though the players did not begin touching the rock for good luck until a year later, the rock must have brought the Tigers good luck, or as Howard states, "mystical powers" in the 40-35 win over Virginia in 1966. The Tigers managed to win despite losing five fumbles and giving up 429 yards total offense. It was obvious some kind of strange powers must have been with the Tigers on this particular day.

It also did not hurt the Tigers' chances that Buddy Gore rushed for 117 yards in this game, and Clemson's Jimmy Addison had one of the top passing days in Clemson history.

The Tigers went ahead in the ACC contest early in the second period on the strength of a 68-yard punt return by Frank Liberatore, a touchdown pass from Addison to Phil Rogers and the running of Buddy Gore. The second and third quarters belonged solely to the Bob Davis-led Cavaliers, and with the help of Clemson fumbles, Virginia took a 35-18 lead with 3:06 left to go in the third quarter.

Edgar McGee, Phil Rogers and Wayne Bell caught key passes to bring Clemson to a 35-33 deficit with about three minutes to play.

Faced with a third down and short yardage on Clemson's 25-yard line, the Tigers were driving for the go-ahead score. "We called a pass play that had resulted in several completions in an earlier game to our split end, Wayne Bell," recalled Clemson quarterback Jimmy Addison.

"Wayne found an open spot between the linebackers, and the Virginia cornerback came from his deep position to cover the open receiver. Jacky Jackson, who had run from his tailback position down the left sideline, made a beautiful catch behind that cornerback and outran the safety man to the end zone." That gave the Tigers a 40-35 advantage with 3:49 left and it proved to be the winning touchdown. "I remember this play distinctly", said Addison who later would attend law school at the University of Virginia. "I thought I had overthrown Jackson, but he put it in second gear and ran underneath the pass."

However the Cavaliers had one more chance and Davis marched Virginia down the field. With 1:49 left to go in the game, the Cavaliers had a second-and-10 situation on the Tigers' 14-yard line. Davis's pass was intercepted by Phil Marion and the Tigers proceeded to run out the clock.

Jimmy Addison was the Associated Press Back-of-the-Week, while Davis was named Sports Illustrated's Back-of-the-Week. It is probably the only time two opposing players in the same game have been named national Players-of-the-Week in the history of college football.

Davis set the Atlantic Coast Conference's record for most passes attempted and completed, records that have since been broken. He finished the game hitting 26-48 passes for 312 yards, while the Tigers' Addison was 12-19 in passing for 283 yards and three scores. Addison is still third on the Clemson individual highest single game passing efficiency list for his performance against the Cavaliers with a 240.39 mark, and is first among Tiger quarterbacks who have thrown at least 15 passes in a game.

"As someone suggested on the sidelines during the fourth quarter," continued Addison, "the university should have run everyone out of the stadium before the fourth quarter and made them pay to re-enter."

It was truly a ball game worth two admissions.

Clemson, South Carolina

The signs on the side of the highway as you enter the Clemson city limits say "Clemson: In Season Every Season." From the point of view of most Clemson graduates, the seasons this slogan speaks of are football, basketball, baseball, etc. But a drive through town in the middle of spring, when the azaleas and dogwoods are in full bloom, or a walk through campus in October, when the trees are blazing in the brilliant colors of autumn, will leave little doubt that Clemson is indeed in season, every season.

Nestled in the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains and caressed by the shores of the beautiful Lake Hartwell, Clemson is located in the northwestern corner of South Carolina, two hours north of Atlanta, GA, and two hours southwest of Charlotte, NC. The town may not be one of the state's largest most days of the week, but on many autumn Saturdays, it becomes the state's second-largest city, as 81,000 fans come from all directions to watch the Tigers play football. But the friendly residents of Clemson and the surrounding towns welcome the visitors home each year with a true dose of southern hospitality.

Clemson is steeped in history. The university campus is located on what was Fort Hill Plantation, home of John C. Calhoun, one of the great statesmen of the 19th century, and of his son-in-law, Thomas Green Clemson. The house, which was built in 1806, stands in the center of campus and is open to the public. Also on the Clemson campus is a 1716 lowcountry French Huguenot home, Hanover House, which was transported to Clemson in 1941. Just a mile or so down the road, is the Pendleton Historic District, where several other antebellum homes are open to the public. The entire village of Pendleton is on the National Register of Historic Places.

The area boasts a great variety of restaurants, ranging from the downtown barbeque and hamburger spots, to the historic Liberty Hall Inns and Calhoun Corners. Any palate or budget can find something to his or her liking, as over 50 eating establishments are located in the Clemson/Pendleton/Central area.

The mild climate of the foothills lends itself to many outdoor activities throughout the year. Clemson has excellent and ample facilities for tennis and golf, fishing, swimming or hiking, horseback riding, white water rafting, and various other pursuits.

And, when one wants to leave Clemson, they don't have far to go to find whatever they are looking for. Professional sports are only a couple of hours away in Atlanta and Charlotte, meaning Clemson residents and students have only a short drive to enjoy major league baseball, NFL football, or their choice of NBA basketball teams.

For sun and fun, it's an easy interstate drive to the coast of South Carolina, to Hilton Head Island, Myrtle Beach, or even historic Charleston. All kinds of water sports are right at the campus' back door, as a 926-mile shoreline borders the edge of campus. And for those who enjoy cooler climates, the mountains of North Carolina are only an hour's drive away. Countless resorts and some of the finest ski slopes in the east are close enough to make a day's outing.

Why some teams have a stronger bench than others.

Tigers in the Pros

By Tim Bourret

Christmas came a little early for Dillard Pruitt last December. The former Clemson Tiger received an envelope from Augusta, GA in the second week of the month that contained an invitation to The Master's, the most prestigious golf tournament in the world, and a landmark in the young golfer's professional career.

It was a surprise to Pruitt. Yes, he had won the Chattanooga Classic six months earlier, his first professional victory, but Pruitt was under the impression that his victory in Tennessee did not qualify him for The Master's. The last few Chattanooga Classic champs had not been chosen for play in Augusta.

"I thought it was a practical joke at first," said Pruitt, who starred with the Tigers between 1981 and 1984. "I wasn't sure who would have done it. I figured Jay (Haas, Dillard's brother-in-law and a PGA Tour veteran) might have arranged it because he had played there many times.

"But, when I called, they said it was not a mistake. They felt the Chattanooga Classic field was strong enough and that I deserved the invitation."

Pruitt shook off opening round jitters (75), made the cut and then finished in a tie for 13th. The high finish automatically qualifies him for the 1993 Master's. When he receives that letter in the second week of December this year, it will be an expected envelope.

"For someone who had grown up in Greenville (SC) and attended The Master's many times as a fan, it was a dream come true. It has been the highlight of my year."

That is saying something for Pruitt, who is in his fourth year on the PGA Tour. He had won nearly $180,000 heading into September and ranked 67th on the money list, which will automatically qualify him for a spot on next year's tour (top 125 on the money list get automatic tour cards). It has been a year in which he has made the cut in all three of the major tournaments he has participated in (US Open, Master's and PGA) and he is now five-for-five in his career in making the cut at a major event.

While he has been successful in terms of ranking and dollars in many tournaments, it has been some of the playing experiences and partners he has had in 1992 that make this year special.

"Playing with Jay and Curtis Strange in the first two rounds of the PGA was great and playing well at the Master's was certainly memorable. But, playing in a group with Arnold Palmer for the first time has to be one of the greatest golf experiences of my life." That round took place just a few weeks back in a Wednesday practice round for the PGA.

"People don't think of professional golfers as having heroes, but I have about 10 players on the tour that I really admire and look up to. Arnold Palmer is certainly one of them.

"I learned so much from that practice round. I couldn't believe the way he handled himself with all those people following him. He never got frustrated, never turned anyone away from an autograph.

"When we would be in a delay on the tee, he would go over to the gallery and talk to people and sign autographs. By the end of the round he had pen marks all over his arm. Seeing the way he treated people first-hand taught me a lot. The game owes him so much and he still gives so much to the game."

How did Dillard Pruitt, Clemson's first two-time All-American and first three-time All-ACC performer reach a state where he is playing with the world's finest golfers? Ironically, his career took a turn in the right direction when he left the country.

"It took me a while to get my card, probably longer than it takes many guys out of college. The key for me was going to Europe. In 1986 and 1987, I played well over there because I just didn't feel the pressure. When I played in the US right out of college I felt pressure to do well every time out. I had a lot of people rooting for me, which I appreciated, but I thought everyone was going to read about it when I didn't do well.

"When I had a bad round in Europe I didn't worry about it. I figured no one was going to find out. As a result, I relaxed and gained confidence. I finished 63rd on the European tour in 1987 and then got my card (PGA) in 1988."

Three years later he won his first pro tournament, the Chattanooga Classic, the first PGA tour title ever for a former Clemson golfer. "I was down a stroke heading into the last round, but I wanted to finish high enough to guarantee that I would get my card the next year. With a couple of holes left I had a top three finish virtually assured, so I went for the win." He had a couple of birdies in the last three holes to win by a couple of shots.

With all the success, Pruitt is someone who has not forgotten his roots. He still follows the Clemson program, one he helped bring to national prominence. During one break in the tour this year he personally followed the Tigers at the Furman Invitational.

"I can't tell you how proud I am of the Clemson program," said Pruitt, who still has the third lowest stroke average in Clemson history. "The program has gotten better and better over the years. The number four and five players last year would have been one and two in the lineup when I played."

Pruitt still keeps in contact with Bobby Robinson, who was head coach his first three years, and Larry Penley, current Clemson coach who was a rookie mentor Dillard's senior year. Pruitt has fond memories of his Clemson career.

"We had success when I was at Clemson because everyone got along so well. We all still keep in touch today and that is because we were close in college. My college teammates follow me when I am playing in their area and we always get together after my round. They are friendships I will have for a long time."

Before Pruitt got to Clemson the Tigers had participated in just one NCAA tournament and had never won the league championship. By the end of his career Clemson had been to four NCAA tournaments, including a number-five national finish in 1983, and won the school's first ACC title.

"My fondest memory at Clemson was winning the ACC tournament in 1982. It was the first ACC championship for Clemson and whenever you are part of the first championship team it is special."

While Pruitt has a special interest in Clemson, Tiger fans and administrators are certainly proud of Pruitt. With Clemson's national following, Pruitt normally has a contingent of Tiger fans following him wherever he goes. "It makes me feel good to have Clemson people follow me. This year Coach (Ken) Hatfield followed me in Atlanta and at The Heritage. I had a chance to speak with him and talk football and a lot of other things. What a great representative of Clemson."

Ditto for you, Dillard!

Pruitt won his first PGA tournament in Chattanooga in 1991, and finished 13th at the 1992 Masters. (Photo by Amy Miles Young).

The Last Word

by Bob Bradley

(One of the most legendary figures in Clemson athletics is Frank Howard, the Tigers head coach between 1940-69. The Hall of Fame coach guided Clemson to eight conference championships, 165 wins and six bowls. But, he might be most remembered for his wit and storytelling.

So, we commissioned Bob Bradley, Clemson SID for 15 of the Howard years, to recreate some of the best of Frank Howard for use in the first two programs of 1992. It is a fitting way to document 50 years of football in Death Valley because Howard supervised the building of Memorial Stadium in 1942. Editor)

There are many legendary recruiting stories for anyone in the coaching profession and Frank Howard was no exception. Perhaps the most unusual story involved Fred Cone, arguably the best back Howard ever coached.

In 1946 Howard had one more scholarship left in his limit of 40 (much higher than the 25 allowed today). Late in the summer he was talking to his sister, who told him about a fellow named Fred Cone, who frequently visited his sister at a home that was next door to the one occupied by Howard's sister.

Howard gave that last scholarship to Cone based on his sister's recommendation. The native of Pineapple, AL, who never played anything more than six-man football in high school, went on to become one of Clemson's all-time greats. He was a key member of the undefeated Clemson team of 1948 and 1950, and went on to a seven-year career with the Green Bay Packers.

After he was impressed with Cone's abilities, Howard asked his sister, "How did you know Fred Cone would be such a great player?" She replied, "Well, I saw him diving off the diving board once."

###

In his final few years as Clemson's head coach, Howard said the only thing he didn't like about football was the recruiting. And he has his share of stories regarding the visiting of high school seniors.

The most well-known he recalls happened when head coach Jess Neely sent him to Charleston to recruit this 240-pound lineman, whose size was unheard of in those days.

When Howard located the house of this 'monster player' after nearly an all-day drive from Clemson, he knocked at the door and this boy weighing all of 165 pounds came to the door. Howard said he was looking for so-and-so, calling the prospect's name, and the boy identified himself as the person Howard had asked for.

"Well, son," Howard said after recovering from the shock, "I'm selling the Saturday Evening Post and was wondering if you would like to subscribe to it?" The young man said no, and Howard turned around and drove all the way back to Clemson.

Howard recalled another time when he received a letter from a coach up in Virginia, telling him about a 155-pound tackle he had. Trying to make his point, this coach told Howard that this player was sure to grow and fill out.

He explained that the boy's great-grandfather came over on the Mayflower, one of his uncles was a former governor of Virginia, another uncle had been a Supreme Court justice and that he didn't see how he could go wrong in giving this player a Clemson scholarship.

"I wrote this coach back real quick," Howard recalls. "I told him that I was looking for a boy to play football...I didn't need one for breeding purposes."

Howard said that he always tried to get on the right side of the player's mama. "I found that the mama is the one behind most of the decisions made at home. I remember one time I did such a good job on selling Clemson to this boy's mama that she came to Clemson and he went to South Carolina."

###

Maybe the greatest duo to ever travel the banquet circuit was Peahead Walker and Frank Howard. They were like wrestlers are said to be: they'd tear each other in front of a live audience, but would ride in the same car to the next engagement.

Howard and some of his coaches were invited to go to Europe in the summer of 1958 to conduct football clinics for the armed forces. This led Walker to write Howard a letter on how to conduct himself while out of the country, passing on some tips "from my vast storehouse of international savior-faire."

Among the things Walker offered for Howard: "Don't talk politics. They're having enough trouble over there without getting involved with someone from South Carolina with an Alabama accent. Dress the part. Buy some new clothes and wear coats that match the pants.

Egg on the tie is not in style."

There were other suggestions, but this will give a hint at what Walker was trying to convey to his friend.

It just so happens that Clemson had a good football team in 1958 and was asked to play in the silver anniversary Sugar Bowl game facing the LSU Tigers, who were ranked number-one in the nation.

The Bayou Tigers had their famous defensive unit that year known as the Chinese Bandits...and they had been known to demoralize any number of teams that year.

Someone asked Walker how he thought Clemson would do facing those Chinese Bandits, and Walker replied:

"I don't think they'll have any problem at all. Clemson has been coached for the past 20 years by a Mongolian idiot."

On another occasion, Howard had Walker arrested prior to a game at Clemson. On Friday afternoon as the Wake Forest team was coming into the stadium, Howard shouted, "There he is. He's the fugitive." A state policeman who was in on the gag immediately handcuffed Walker to a telephone pole as Howard walked away laughing.

But, the next day Walker experienced further problems. As the team entered the stadium, Walker was stopped by a security guard. He did not have his sideline pass and the guard was adamant about not letting him in.

Walker yelled to his team captain, Pat Preston, to identify him. "I've never seen him before in my life," said Preston, who had been enticed to take part in the prank by Howard. Finally, Walker got loose and was allowed into the stadium. "Peahead was so cheap, he usually sold his sideline pass for $2," said Howard. Reportedly, Preston did a world record number of sprints when the team returned to Winston-Salem.

###

Howard also had a friendly, perhaps even big brother relationship with Bear Bryant. As an Alabama alum, and senior to Bryant in the head coaching fraternity by a few years, Howard could put the Bear in his place from time to time.

One year he visited Bryant in his office and saw a red phone on his desk. "What is that for," said Howard. "It speaks direct to God," replied Bryant.

"You mean I can call God?" asked Howard. "Sure can," replied Bryant. "It will cost you only $20."

The next year Bryant returned the visit to Howard's office. Howard had an orange phone on his desk.

"What's that orange phone for," said Bryant. "That's a special phone direct to God," remarked Howard.

"How much would it cost me to call God from here?" queried Bryant.

"It doesn't cost a thing," said Howard. "Around here that's a local call."

###

(Chapter two next week)

Howard and Bryant had direct lines to God from their respective offices. However, "Bear's was a long distance call."
